Improvement Over 1957

Home Building Increasing

By Leonard Randolph

NEW homes are springing up all over Monroe County. In general homebuilding appears to be keeping pace with rising population and accelerated industrial location in the area.

A spokesman for the local building industry said last night that there is about 20 percent more activity right now in home construction than for the same period last year.

Harvey Huffman, secretary of the Monroe County Master Builders and Contractors Assn., estimated that about $5,000,000 in new homes will be constructed by the major contractors who belong to that organization.

Not included in this total are estimates for the dozens of remaining contractors in the county. There are around 75 home building contractors in Monroe. They range from small two-man operations to larger and more organized units.

At the same time, Huffman commented that the current year will not represent a peak in home construction for the area.

There have been two notable periods in Monroe County when home construction really hit a high stride, Huffman said. The first of these occurred during the late 20s. A second peak came along in 1955, he said.

A large portion of the new home construction now current seems to be traceable to the movement of segments of population into the township areas surrounding the two major boroughs of the county.

A marked increase in home building has been noted in Stroud Township and Stroudsburg's outlying sections. This is the area in which most of the present construction is taking place.

Major contributing factors in the booming home building industry in Monroe County have been the multiple "developments". These are not, in the accepted sense of the word, "housing" developments. They are, in general, tracts of land which have been purchased by one owner. These are later broken down into homebuilding lots or acreages. The mushrooming development of housing in rural areas is part of a recent trend on the part of borough residents toward "country living" in the view of some local contractors. The "developments" have played an important part here, also.

But Monroe County's population is also springing upward to new all-time highs.

Last week the State Department of Health reported that the 1957 population of Monroe County was over 40,000. This was 18.4 percent higher than the 33,773 reported in the official census of 1950.

The figures also show that Monroe County is growing, in population, much more rapidly than the remainder of the state, percentage-wise. The state increase for the same seven-year period was only 6.4 percent.

Huffman said that most of the homes now under construction are in the "over $10,000" class. The majority of them are being built at a cost of between $17,000 and $25,000 he said.

Although a portion of the upswing toward more expensive homes may be due to rises in construction cost, the general trend today is toward larger, more comfortable family-style homes capable of housing a full-sized family group.

Wood is still far out in front as the most popular home building material, Huffman said. Second is popularity is brick.

Huffman notes that native fieldstone is still one of the most popular construction materials, but it is now used, almost exclusively for a particular section of the home in which its decorative and aesthetic qualities will work to greatest advantage.

The sprawling, one-story, ranch-style home is still leading the list in popular construction styles, Huffman said. This continues without interruption an overall trend toward ranch-style homes which has been general in Monroe County during the past five to 10 years.

Throughout the county, the home construction industry is keeping pace with demands for more housing and newer homes.

And enterprising contractors and prospective homeowners are finding new locations every day.

Little Rock Paper Filed

Federal Court Of Appeals To Make Ruling

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A motion to stay a district court order granting a 2½-year suspension of integration at Central High School in Little Rock, Ark., was received yesterday by the federal court of appeals.

The motion, which came by mail, was accompanied by a notice of appeal from the ruling by U.S. Dist. Judge Harry J. Lemley at Little Rock.

"Community psychological unreasonableness for racial integration is no basis to continue noncompliance with the constitutional law of the United States," attorneys for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People said. If Judge Lemley's order remains in effect Negro children already attending the Little Rock school will not be permitted to continue in the school next fall. The appeals court is expected to rule on the stay motion before that time.

In recess, Robert Tucker, clerk of the appellate court here, said he would send the motion for a stay and a memorandum supporting it to Chief Judge Archibald K. Gardner at his home in Huron, S.D. The court is in recess for the summer. The motion and notice of appeal were filed by Wiley A. Branton of Pine Bluff, Ark., and Thurgood Marshall of New York, attorneys for the NAACP. The appeal itself was docketed for the September term.

Committee Votes Atomic Expansion

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Atomic Energy Committee voted last night nearly to double the 1958-1959 atomic building program recommended by the Eisenhower administration.

The committee added about 184 million dollars authorization for construction projects in the year starting next month. The lion's share — 145 million — was earmarked for a second plant to produce plutonium, the working element of nuclear weapons.

Practically all the remainder of the increase is accounted for by facilities for basic research. Some Democratic members of the joint committee have been charging the Atomic Energy Commission is lagging in that field.

The new plutonium plant, like the country's only existing one, would be at AEC's Hanford facility at Richland, Wash.

Reds Make New Charges

MOSCOW (AP)—The official Soviet Tass news agency said last night American authorities "bear direct responsibility" for anti-Soviet demonstrations at the Soviet U.N. delegation headquarters in New York.

The Danish and West German governments were similarly blamed for anti-Soviet demonstrations in Copenhagen and Bonn.

In those cities and New York and elsewhere demonstrators protested the Moscow-announced executions of Hungarian ex-Premier Imre Nagy and other 1956 anti-Soviet revolt leaders.

Daily Record Publishing One Year In New Building

EXACTLY one year ago today the first edition of The Daily Record published in the new Record building rolled off the presses.

Since that time The Daily Record has endeavored to increase its service to its customers and the public in general. Through the use of its new high speed 20-page printing press, The Record has published, for the first time in its history, a newspaper with a customary one-fold page.

During this past year, The Record has published a total of 10 special editions. These have ranged from the initial "Open House" issue on November 8, 1957 to the recent "Pocono Vacationland" edition published this past month.

Today The Record celebrates its first year in its new home with another "special". The 24-page tabloid section will be found inserted in this morning's copy of The Record.

The tabloid is another new departure for The Daily Record. In its new home, operating with the new press, this newspaper has been able, for the first time, to publish special editions in the handy, easy-to-read and file smaller tabloid size.

The first tabloid was published on November 22, 1957. Three other such sections have been printed and distributed by the newspaper during this past year.

Also adding to our scope and effect as a newspaper-printing and advertising medium has been the use of color. Since June 25, 1957, The Record has sold and published 21 pages in color advertising.

Editorially The Record has expanded its news coverage, increased its photographic record of the year's happenings and added new features during its first year in its new home.

Thousands of persons have "dropped in" to see the new quarters — either individually or as part of the large number of groups which have toured the building.

Ike, McElroy Deny Threat

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Secretary of Defense McElroy passed on word yesterday that they never intended any threat of reprisal against Adm. Arleigh Burke for criticizing their plan for defense reorganization.

This assurance brought no immediate evidence of softening charges by Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) that attempts are being made to muzzle top military officers such as Burke, chief of naval operations.

However, Russell and McElroy were reported conferring by telephone over the senator's demand for "a clear and unequivocal" statement that military officers can speak freely without fear of reprisal.

Chairman Russell is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee which is studying a House-passed defense reorganization bill that contains features the administration wants changed. He would not comment after Eisenhower's and McElroy's assurance was relayed to newsmen by Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) and House GOP Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. (Mass.).

Knowland, after the weekly GOP White House conference, said McElroy had been in touch with Russell and "I am very hopeful that any misunderstanding may be clarified."

This newest tempest over defense reorganization was touched off by a news conference McElroy held Saturday. He described as disappointing and regrettable some of Burke's testimony before Russell's committee taking issue with administration recommendations.

McElroy later denied that he had rebuked the admiral. But Russell said McElroy's remarks carried a clear implication "that the Joint Chiefs must conform or be purged."

Knowland, in reporting on yesterday's White House meeting, said it was his understanding that Eisenhower "does not feel that any reprimand or reprisal was made or intended." The senator said it was his clear impression that McElroy also took that position during the meeting.

Navy Logs Successful Polaris Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Navy reportedly logged another highly successful test with its Polaris experimental rocket yesterday, a feat it failed to achieve earlier with the experimental Vanguard.

A few hours after the latest Vanguard satellite shoot was "scrubbed" for the second time in four days, the Polaris roared away on a brief but spectacular performance.

Solid Fuel

The solid fuel-powered Polaris, a test version of what probably will be the free world's most advanced ballistic missile by 1960, jerked and twisted aloft for some 25 seconds before it burst apart as planned.

The launching was conducted to test the rocket's guidance system and strength under extreme conditions.

25-Million Protected For Payments

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government announced yesterday that nearly 25 million workers now are protected for extra payments if they exhaust regular unemployment insurance benefits.

A dozen states have signed up under the recently enacted emergency plan to give unemployed workers benefits for half again as many weeks as they drew before running out of regular benefits. Four more states have enacted equivalent plans on a do-it-yourself basis.

In all, these 16 states contain nearly 25 million of the 43 million workers covered under the regular federal-state unemployment insurance program, part of the Social Security Act.

Regular Benefits About 1½ million of these insured workers have exhausted regular benefits since last July 1. Of this number, about 880,000 eligible for extra benefits live in the 16 states and the District of Columbia which have agreed to pay them.

Three states came into the federal program yesterday. They are California, New Jersey and West Virginia. They joined nine other signatory states: Pennsylvania, New York, Michigan, Maryland, Indiana, Alabama, Arkansas, Rhode Island and Delaware, plus the District of Columbia.

Under the federal plan these states will be advanced funds by the government, but they will have to repay the money later.

Four states decided to tap their own idle pay reserve funds and supply the same type of extended temporary benefits. They are Illinois, Wisconsin, Colorado and Connecticut.

The states will pay the extra benefits in the same amount as regular benefits. The national average payment is $30 a week.

Commission Denies Use Of Influence

WASHINGTON (AP)—House investigators uncovered information yesterday that Bernard Goldfine paid a hotel bill one time for a federal judge who once presided over a suit against one of Goldfine's companies.

The jurist, U.S. Dist. Judge William T. McCarthy of Boston, disqualified himself after Goldfine personally was made a party to the action involving his firm, the East Boston Co.

Several members of the House Commerce subcommittee sharply criticized the Securities and Exchange Commission, which brought the case, for what they termed failure to crack down quickly.

But SEC Chairman Edward W. Gadsby said inquiries from the White House and from senators had nothing to do with a six-year delay in prosecuting the case against Goldfine, a friend of Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's chief aide.

Adams has acknowledged making inquiries to federal agencies on Goldfine's behalf at a time when he was accepting gifts and hotel hospitality from the wealthy Bostonian.

Indirectly The story of the hotel bill came out indirectly.

Rep. John Bell Williams (D-Miss.), who presided at the hearing, said the committee will ask Goldfine whether he paid hotel bills for Judge McCarthy. Another committee member, Rep. John B. Bennett (R-Mich.), said he understands Goldfine entertained the judge in New York and Boston.

A Goldfine lawyer, Samuel P. Sears, said Goldfine paid only one hotel bill for McCarthy, in New York. Sears said that was before Goldfine even knew that his East Boston Co. would be involved in a court case.

After contacting Goldfine by telephone, Sears told reporters that McCarthy did his best to repay the hotel bill charge of about $90 that Goldfine picked up but Goldfine wouldn't take the money.

At his home in Cambridge, Mass., Judge McCarthy said in response to an inquiry: "I have no comment to make except to say it wouldn't be fair to the committee or to anyone if I should comment without knowing what I am commenting about."

Gadsby denied that SEC was lax in taking court action to force East Boston to file financial reports. He told the House subcommittee on Legislative Oversight: "To put it bluntly, the commission could hardly have done more if Mr. Adams were Mr. Goldfine's worst enemy."

Bulletin

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Army launched another Redstone medium range ballistic missile toward space last night.

The 63-foot rocket, the most advanced ballistic weapon in the U. S. arsenal, streaked high into the clear Florida sky, blasting out a thick stream of yellow flame.

Lebanon Chief In Conference With Dag

BEIRUT (AP)—Lebanon's President Camille Chamoun talked with UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld yesterday in regards to the menace of an all-out Rebel attack within two days.

Both men were grim faced after their 40-minute conference.

Hammarskjöld, just back from Cairo, made no comment, but Chamoun reported Rebel forces are massing in three areas, leading to the belief that heavy attacks are about to be launched.

Scattered violence continued. U.S. Ambassador Robert McClintock narrowly escaped injury when a bomb exploded 30 feet from his car. An embassy official said the bomb went off in a latrine while McClintock's car was going by. The official said it was sheer coincidence and no attempt on the ambassador's life. Neither McClintock nor his driver was hurt.

At least three other bombs exploded in Beirut during the day, one opposite the American University. A time bomb blasted a bus near the mountain village of Zahle, killing four persons.

Asked to comment on his talk with Hammarskjöld, Chamoun said: "All I can tell you is that the secretary general said he is rather optimistic. The secretary general has tried to do a good job here, but we will wait and see whether his optimism is justified."

Chamoun charged that infiltration of men and arms from the Arab Republic has been increasing since the United Nations decided to send observers into Lebanon.

Santo Amaro Puts Dead In Mass Graves

SALVADOR, Brazil (AP)—The north Brazilian village of Santo Amaro buried its dead in mass graves yesterday in the wake of a disastrous fireworks blowup that killed 100 holidaymakers and injured 300 others.

Some victims of the blasts that wrecked a festive market place and sent firecrackers and rockets shooting in all directions, were charred beyond recognition. They were buried under nameless crosses.

Investigation The State of Bahia, scene of the Santo Amaro tragedy and a fireworks factory explosion at Feira de Santana that claimed seven lives and injured 40, launched an investigation.

The Santo Amaro disaster occurred when a short circuit touched off rockets and firecrackers in an outdoors booth at the fair grounds. Fire quickly engulfed the neighboring stands.

Most victims were women and children scrambling for safety. Many were electrocuted as a high tension wire fell in their path.

Government Feels Slump At End

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Commerce Department said yesterday the recession slump in sales and production has been arrested.

This was the broadest statement yet issued by a government agency to support hopes that the economic decline has hit bottom.

The department said, however, that there is no clear evidence of a slowing down on inventory liquidation, which it termed the most important single factor aggravating the recession.

The latest report on the cost of living, just made public, also held out hope that the two-year inflationary spiral has leveled out for the summer. For the first time since November, over-all food costs did not rise.

At Bottom

This was a factor in making the May rise in the government's living cost index the smallest since December. It again reached a peak, advancing to 123.6 per cent of the 1947-48 average. The index has not declined to any month since August 1956.

Newell Brown, assistant secretary of labor, said the recession has definitely hit bottom. But, he added, in a speech at Ann Arbor, Mich., that it will take the nation a year to recover from the effects.

Scranton Firm Wins Contract

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—The apparent low bidder on a reservoir project on the Pound River at Pound, Va., was announced yesterday by the Huntington District Army Engineers.

Sprague and Henwood Company of Scranton, Pa., submitted a low bid of $13,932.50. The government estimate on the project was $24,638.50. Three other firms submitted bids.

Native Of County Dies In Bethlehem

BETHLEHEM — Harvey J. Frantz, 77, a native of Monroe County, died Monday in St. Luke's Hospital, Fountain Hill, where he had been a medical patient since June 15. He resided at the American Hotel, Bethlehem.

He was born in Sciota, but had lived in Bethlehem since 1885. A pioneer in the automobile business, he was owner of the second garage founded in Bethlehem and remained in the business 25 years before retiring.

Mr. Frantz was a member of the Masonic Lodge for 50 years, a 32nd Degree Mason and a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Spanish-American War
He enlisted in the Spanish-American War when he was 17 and was the youngest soldier from the Lehigh Valley. He served as an infantry private in the Fourth Pennsylvania Volunteers. Mr. Frantz was a lieutenant in the Motor Transport Service during World War One.

He leaves one son, Harvey Frantz, assistant to the executive director of the Bethlehem Authority; one brother, George, Bethlehem; a daughter, Mrs. Hillard Miller, Northampton; five grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. at the Steyers Funeral Home, 500 Linden St., Bethlehem. Rev. Vernon Hoover will officiate and burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Thursday night.

Stocks Buck Slumping Market Trend

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined yesterday for the second straight session but a number of the most active stocks bucked the trend with sizable gains.

Volume rose to 2,560,000 shares compared with Monday's 2,340,000 and was well above average for the year.

Key stocks pulled down the averages with losses running from fractions to a point or so. Some of the gains went to 2 and 3 points.

American Motors once again was in stage center as it repeated Monday's role as the most active stock. This time it rose 3/8, more than erasing Monday's 1/2 loss.

Rebounds
The stock rebounded as a federal judge issued an order restraining financier Louis E. Wolfson from alleged manipulation of American Motors stock. A SEC official charged that Wolfson was short 100,000 shares of American Motors last Friday when a news article said he was in the process of selling his 400,000 shares and would sell the remaining 300,000 this summer. The official added that a statement by Wolfson took advantage of this to buy shares to cover his short position.

A short sale involves the sale of borrowed stock. The stock is repaid through a later purchase. A profit is made if the later purchase is at a lower price than the original sale.

The rise of the cost of living to another high and price cut for copper by a big Belgian producer were among other market factors.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 80 cents to $172.10 with the industrials down $1.20, the rails down $1.40 and the utilities unchanged.

Of 1,158 issues traded, 584 fell and 319 rose. New highs for the year totaled 42 and new lows 8.

Nine of the 15 most active stocks advanced, five fell and one was unchanged.

American Stock Exchange prices declined on volume of 860,000 shares compared with 910,000 Monday.

Bids On Greentown Project Posted For July 11

Construction To Relieve Flood Danger

(Record Harrisburg Bureau)

HARRISBURG—Bids for construction of a stream channel project, two bridges and a section of highway in the New-foundland-Greentown area will be received July 11 by the State Department of Highways, the Record learned today.

All construction involves East Branch of Wallenpaupack Creek.

Relocation and deepening of the channel will be undertaken to reduce possibility of flooding the area.

Two Structures

The bridges will replace two structures damaged in the 1955 flood. They are in Greene Township, Pike County.

One of the bridges is on Route 507. The other bridge is on Route 1669. Each span will be two lanes.

The stream project involves relocating East Branch to have it enter the main creek about 200 feet from its present point of confluence to eliminate bends in the stream, which a department spokesman said, contributes to flooding conditions.

Deepening of the channel will be undertaken between the two bridges, which are about a quarter mile apart, and also over a distance of about 2,750 feet upstream.

In another phase of the effort to reduce chances of flooding in the area the State Department of Forests and Waters has completed a topographic survey which is now being reviewed by the department's district engineer at Kingston.

Upon completion of his studies the data will be sent to the Harrisburg offices where a plan of construction will be made. Clifford H. McConnell, chief of the department's division of flood control has placed a limit of two months in which the plans are to be completed.

A department spokesman said the instability of the type of soil in the area brings difficulty to the problem of making provision against flooding possibilities.

Following the 1955 flood he said the department widened the channel to 40 feet but that within a short period it had eroded to 80 feet.

A department official said the plan to be developed from the topographic survey will be to stabilize the stream in its present alignment.

The department's project involves Wallenpaupack Creek over a distance of about three miles in both Pike and Wayne counties.

Smathers Sees Victory For Party

(AP) — Sen.

George Smathers (D-Fla.) claimed yesterday the Democrats will make sweeping gains in Senate races this year. But Sen. Irving Ives (R-N.Y.) said it's too early for accurate election forecasts.

Smathers, who heads the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee said his party chances have improved so much in the last few months he thinks Democrats may win from 12 to 14 Senate seats now held by the opposition.

Ives, who has announced he is retiring this year, said prospects looked dim for the Republicans in 1946 but they scored upsets in the voting.

The two senators aired their views in separate broadcasts.

Smathers conceded he was being very optimistic in saying that the Democrats might take 12 or 14 Republican seats. Democrats now outnumber Senate Republicans 49-47.

Attributing Democratic gains to "the general recession we are having," Smathers said the voters are unhappy because "there has been no leadership evidenced by this administration to pull the country out of the recession."

Critical Question

Ives said the critical question to be decided in November is "whether the Eisenhower administration must continue to function in a divided government for the next two years."

Ives turned the voters for failing to chide in years when the presidential office is not at stake.

He also said it is time for politicians to "stop leaving to foregone conclusions about what the election results are going to be."

"At this time of the year in 1946, Republican prospects in New York state looked rather dim," he said. "Yet by early November of that year, I had not only been nominated as the Republican senatorial candidate, but had been elected by a margin of more than a quarter of a million votes — to the surprise of everybody, including myself."

Smathers forecast Democratic victories in Senate races in Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, California and for two seats in West Virginia. He did not explain where the possible 14th victory might come.

Total Non-Agriculture Employment Of Wage Workers Shows Gain Over Period

TOTAL non-agricultural wage and salaried worker employment gained 7.5 percent during the two months ending May 15, John P. Dougherty, manager of the local Pennsylvania State Employment Service office, reported yesterday.

The estimate is based on reports received from 50 cooperating major employers who regularly submit employment trend data. The sampling reveals an employment decline of 3.3 percent in manufacturing establishments from the March 15 figure.

Employment in manufacturing industries totaled 2,716 on May 15, compared to 2,807 on March 15. The estimate for July 15 is 2,756. In non-manufacturing employment, the figures were 4,439 on May 15, compared to 3,864 on March 15 and a July 15 estimate of 5,385. Total employment was 7,155 on May 15, 6,671 on March 15 and an estimated 8,141 on July 15.

Labor Supply

The labor supply will be adequate to meet the demand over the next two to four months except in the hotel segment of the service industry, according to Dougherty. Shortages of experienced resort workers available for work until late fall or on a year-round basis have already developed.

There is a surplus of students desiring summer employment only from June to September.

In addition, some shortages of skilled construction workers may develop as planned new construction for the area gets underway. Hiring of labor necessary to staff these projects is expected to reduce unemployment in the area which is currently about 41 percent higher than last year.

Approximately 34 percent of the 400 seniors graduating from Monroe and Pike County high schools this year are expected to continue their education with the remaining 66 percent, or most of them, entering the local labor market.

Rockefeller Report Views Education

THIS WEEK a special report on American education was issued by Panel V of the Special Studies Project of the Rockefeller Brothers Fund.

Today, in the first of a series of articles, The Daily Record begins publishing the summary of that report. The summary is being printed here as a public service in the belief that many of the recommendations and observations in the Rockefeller report are of direct importance and application to our own community.

1. Individual Dignity

Ultimately the source of a nation's greatness is in the individuals who constitute the living substance of the nation. A concern for the realization of individual potentialities is deeply rooted in our moral heritage, our political philosophy, and the texture of our own customs.

Our devotion to a free society can only be understood in terms of these values. It is the only form of society that puts at the very top of its agenda the opportunity of the individual to develop his potentialities. But in its deepest sense our concern for human excellence is a reflection of our ideal of the overriding importance of human dignity.

Our success or failure in this task is of crucial importance not for ourselves alone. All over the world peoples are striving for a new and fuller meaning of life. No challenge is more important than to give concrete meaning to the idea of human dignity.

2. Nature Of Challenge

The Setting of the Problem: Our Population Characteristics
Since 1950 on an average day there has been a net rise of about 7,600 in the population; over the year, a rise of some 2,800,000. This may give us a population of not quite 225,000,000 by 1975.

The age composition of the population in 1975 will differ markedly from that of 1955. The recent baby boom will have resulted in an enormous increase in age groups 15 to 24; and as our present middle ages attain the later brackets, there will be a large increase in the age group 65 and over.

This pattern of future population will present two vital problems. The first concerns the flood of young people who will place an immense pressure on educational institutions in the next twenty years, and on the labor market shortly thereafter. The second problem involves the social and individual problems posed by a rapidly expanding older group.

B. The Changing Demands Society and the Pressure on the Supply of Talent.

One of the striking features of contemporary life is the growing range and complexity of the tasks on which our social organization depends. This is dramatically apparent in science but is no less a reality in nearly every field of endeavor.

The demand for highly trained talent is not a sudden development. It has been coming for a long time. The increase in skill and training needed by our labor force can be expected to accelerate in the years ahead. Automation will reduce the number of routine jobs and will replace them by more demanding tasks of supervision, maintenance and regulation in addition to the production of the machines themselves.

There is a constant pressure by an ever more complex society (Please turn to page twelve)

Group Agrees On Compromise

WASHINGTON — A Senate House Conference Committee agreed yesterday on a compromise version of a bill to authorize 1½ billion dollars of water projects. It is a version which Sen. Robert Kerr (D-Okla.) has said meets all administration objections.

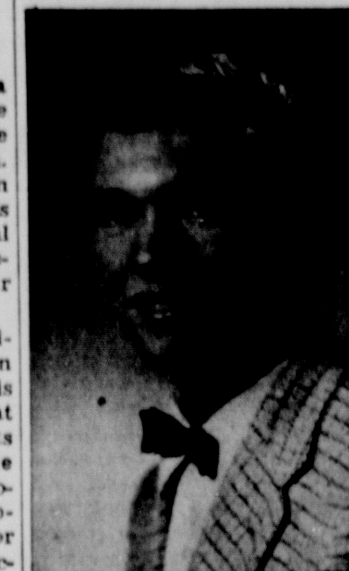

President Eisenhower twice has vetoed similar bills in recent years, once in 1956 and again earlier this year.

Johnson Returns From California

WILLIAM D. JOHNSON, 508 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg, returned yesterday from the National Junior Chamber of Commerce convention in Los Angeles.

Johnson is Pennsylvania Jaycees National Director. He is, according to reports from Jaycees officials, the first Negro to hold National office in the organization.

He has been active in the Pocono Mountains Jaycees since the group began. Among his major duties has been direction of public relations in the local community group and on the state level.

At the Los Angeles convention, attended by 5,000 delegates, Johnson took part in the public relations conference as a consultant.

Hollywood

He left Newark airport Monday, June 16 to attend the convention. Headquarters for the conference were set up in the Statler-Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles but Johnson and many other Jaycees stayed in the Knickerbocker-Hollywood Hotel in Hollywood.

Most of the week's time was devoted to business sessions on upcoming Jaycees activities, Johnson said, and the election of officers. This latter took up 12 hours of balloting time before one man was chosen for president, he reported.

Johnson attended the West Coast premiere of "Windjammer," a new movie shot in the Cinemascope process, at Grauman's Chinese Theatre in Hollywood.

During hours in between conference sessions Johnson and other Jaycees met such stars as Gary Merrill, Fred MacMurray and Red Foley.

Our Opinions On Education

The Daily Record has long been a campaigner for improved education in Monroe County and surrounding areas. The Record believes that all branches of education must keep step with modern times.

Last week's series of articles by Leonard Randolph, dealing with the Pocono Mountains Area Joint School, brought to the front several weaknesses of some local school systems. The weaknesses include:

1. Lack of merit raises for teachers.
2. Extremely heavy teaching loads by individual teachers.
3. Improper screening of teaching candidates by school boards.
4. Wrong attitudes on behalf of both teachers and school boards.
5. Lack of proper space to conduct class room work.

The Daily Record is of the opinion that a satisfied teacher for the most part is a good teacher. We also feel that only good teachers should be employed in our schools.

Good pay is one way to keep a teacher satisfied, but educators throughout the United States are of the belief that many other items must be considered by school boards and school directors.

The Daily Record is particularly interested in the vital subject of education because it deals with the youth of our nation. It deals with our future leaders and it deals with our future teachers and school board members.

Not one stone should be left unturned in an effort to make our schools perfect.

School teachers of today face bigger and tougher problems than instructors of the past. Problems have grown greatly in the past 10 years, education experts agree.

The post-war teacher is facing difficulties unheard of in the pre-war era. The present teacher is working with a different type student. The instructors find that the modern child's mind develops at a much earlier age than those of the same age bracket in the 1930s.

This newspaper realizes that area school boards, the Monroe County Education Office and high ranking school officials face terrific problems and work under a great deal of pressure.

But, we feel that each school board must improve its method of screening teachers. It takes a good school director to find good teachers. Other types of school directors find bad teachers, who in three years on the job are protected by tenure. School boards must have the courage to fire, before tenure, all incompetents.

A teacher must be hired only on his ability and not judged on ANY OTHER BASIS.

It is this newspaper's burning desire to see the best teachers in the profession hired by our local schools and kept under their employ without massive annual turn-overs, as long as the individuals remain top ranking instructors.

Good pay and good working conditions for teachers are not the final answer.

The answer is intelligent leadership on the part of school boards, Parent-Teachers Associations, a conscientious desire on the part of every taxpayer that his children, and his neighbor's children deserve nothing but the best—and that he is willing to pay for it as he insists on this policy.

What this newspaper insists on is the very best for all Monroe County children. Consequently, The Record plans to renew its series of educational articles from time to time in the future.

The Pennsylvania Story

Road Repairs Curtailed

By Mason Donson
Harrisburg—Just how serious is this fiscal pinch or switch the Department of Highways is pulling in trying to get under way its spectacular—the federal-state four-lane interstate expressways—can be seen from the fact that it is being done at the expense of the lower roads which today still carry the bulk of traffic.

In cranking the fiscal whip least, the department is laying down the maintenance program for the district—rather than the district laying out its own maintenance schedule.

Financial considerations form the backbone for this move. It provides a curtailment of normal maintenance funds—for other purposes, as for example, providing needed additional state funds to handle the big urban interstate expressway program.

Out in the districts, maintenance superintendents in many instances are up in the air as to what they can do. One reported to this column:

"We don't know how much money we can have even at this late date and we don't know what maintenance projects we can do and cannot do. We're sitting on our haunches awaiting word from Harrisburg."

In some districts, this column has learned, the program for the month of June has not yet been cleared—with the month now virtually over!

Much of this has been heavily hush-mouthed. State payrollers in key district spots for the most part, understandably fearful of their jobs, strain every effort to avoid discussion of the issue.

Just how the road program for "ordinary" roads has been cut is illustrated by the case of one road in a northern tier county where the department last year at considerable expense graded and laid the conventional crushed stone base for a projected rebuilt section of highway.

The project was never finished. The sub-grade base remained in that status over the winter months, through the wet spring—and remains in that condition today, potted and literally shot by traffic movement during the year.

The district has been awaiting the go-ahead signal and funds from the department here in Harrisburg to put on the blacktop surface and finish the job.

Per diem workers are down to the bone—and lower than this in some districts—with only a skeleton crew in operation at this normally peak point in the construction and maintenance season.

In some cases the reduced crew that is on tap is handling such piddling chores as building road edges and berms—while the main roadway becomes "pothole highway" for lack of maintenance.

Quipped one district worker: "We're ending up with million dollar road shoulders on ten-cent roadways."

The millions of dollars being poured into the dramatic four-lane expressways in such urban areas as Philadelphia and Pittsburgh may provide good publicity—but at the expense of heavily used "ordinary" roads.

Their Golden Anniversary

6008 Cedarhurst St., West Philadelphia 43, Pa.
Dear Editor:

Mrs. Harl and I are getting ready to celebrate our first 50 years of happy married life on Wednesday, June 25. Our big celebration will be Saturday, the 28th, at Washington's Crossing State Park on the Delaware.

Our immediate family numbers 20 comprising four generations. We have one son (John W. Harl of Stroudsburg); two daughters, one grandson, six granddaughters, two great-grandsons and one great-granddaughter.

I have written a poem which I wish you would publish on our anniversary. The poem accompanies this letter.

Our Golden Wedding Day
The old home town is

Three hundred miles up State, Famous for its groundhog legend
And, the place where I found my mate.

Here's how this romance started
And its blamed on an "Antique Car"
Of the vintage of "nineteen-six"—
It had two cylinders and ten horse-power).

It's fifty-two years ago this June
I offered a "lift" to a blushing maid,
Starting to work, (walking), to town—
She hopped in, smiling, unafraid.

Wasn't I glad she trusted me
Even though we'd never met?
(I had banked on her brother's "sympathy",

And it sure proved to be one safe bet).

Bertha's big bachelor brother
Had known me for some time.
And his kind co-operation
Helped to make this romance rhyme.

'Way back in those far-off days
There were only three cars in town
Besides my shining little Maxwell—
(We all ran some chickens down).

So, getting back to our story,
Bertha Weaver was her name,
I turn'd out to be her
"steady"
And that little Maxwell was to blame.

The Lord has been so good to us
Through all these fifty years
In sparing us from tragedies
And allaying all our fears.

Looking back in retrospection
What a story we have to tell!
To all our "offspring" listed below—
They owe a Big debt to a little Maxwell.

Eden was a province in Sum-

Doubtless Abraham brought

A Look At Figures

General Motors has issued an information hand book which is very enlightening about our economy.

For instance, although it is generally assumed that the growth of sales has been steadily upward, the figures show that since 1938, it has been zig-zag, back and forth, but beginning with 1948, there was a sudden spurt of buying, running like this:

1948—$ 4,000,000,000
1949—$ 5,000,000,000
1950—$ 7,000,000,000
1951—$ 7,000,000,000
1952—$ 7,000,000,000
1953—$10,000,000,000
1954—$ 9,000,000,000
1955—$12,000,000,000
1956—$10,000,000,000
1957—$10,000,000,000

Obviously 1955 was an exceptional year for the automobile business, but that is not readily explained because it was the year of doubt economically, the year when the recession was beginning to make itself felt in certain industries.

Lasts Many Years

The immediate problem that faces the automobile industry is how to continue to keep style as the major sales factor for a utility product. In a word, to continue the enormous sale of American cars to the American population it is essential to establish standards by which a car becomes old-fashioned within a year; obsolescent within two years.

But the American car is a well-constructed vehicle that lasts many years after a primary and secondary sale. The actual improvements in the operating machinery can be very few and they grow less significant to the motorist each year.

So it comes to a matter of styling and styling is taste—taste in shape decorations, color, interiors, etc. When taste rather than necessity is the factor, purchases become post-ponable.

It used to be said, say 20 years ago, that it was impossible to saturate a market for consumption goods in a high standard, capitalist country. That was an argument against Communism and other forms of socialism. Depressions, it was said, were caused not by

Old-Fashioned Woman

DEAR ABBY: I am an eligible 28-year-old and everyone asks me why I'm not married. To tell the truth I haven't found anybody that is all woman. What has happened to women? They cut their hair like men, puff on cigarettes like men, put on shapely dresses and do men's jobs. Just the other day I drove up to a service station and a woman came out and pumped the gas. I see women driving cabs, cutting grass and washing cars. The first woman I meet who is all woman is going to be my wife.

DEAR ALL: Come now — there are plenty of women who have retained their femininity and haven't thrown everything they've got into a sack. You're looking in the wrong places.

DEAR ABBY: My husband makes me very angry on one certain subject, and I hope you will settle it once and for all. When a commercial comes on TV for men's deodorant he nearly laughs his fool head off. He says that is for pansy-type men and no woman would ever use such a thing, yet he sees the man right on the TV screen using it and he has big muscles while my husband is a dried-up, skinny little weasel. Tell him, Abby.

THE BALL AND CHAIN

DEAR B. AND C.: If a man can look good and smell good, that makes him even more of a man. Your husband has strutted in his noddle.

Washington—Social security beneficiaries are now virtually certain of a cost-of-living increase of a approximately 10 percent.

That will add an estimated $700,000,000 to old age and other payments.

This has been definitely decided by the bipartisan leaders of the House Ways and Means Committee. They have privately agreed to limit the committee's bill to liberalize social security benefits to an across-the-board raise of around 10 percent.

The committee, which has been conducting hearings on this issue, will report out a measure by next week. This legislature will be brought before the full House for a vote the following week, after the July 4 holiday. It will then

Good Evening Ladies!

Loves Mother-In-Laws

By Ken Duvall

When somebody came up with the idea of a mothers-in-law day, comparable to the honor paid mothers, I was all for it. Perhaps it was because I have a good mother-in-law myself. Not that she particularly approves of me as a son-in-law, for which I don't blame her, but she has been good to me. She may look at me askance once in a while, but I have yet to get that first dirty look.

Two women, unless they are proved stinkers, as they sometimes are, have my deepest sympathy because they are the victims of vicious canards that are decades, maybe centuries, old. One is the wife's mother, or the traditional mother-in-law beloved by the comedians; the other is the step-mother.

If a woman is a good woman, intelligent and decent in her relationship with other people, she will make a good mother-in-law or a good step-mother. If she is a stupid and nasty person, she can wreck more homes in these roles than all the family relation counselors in Christendom can put back together.

However, in the list of causes for family bust-ups, the mother-in-law rates near the bottom, along with marital infidelity. Husbands' mothers cause far more trouble than do wives' mothers. Husbands' sisters cause more trouble than either. Husbands' brothers are a close second to their sisters in this respect. The old man on both sides minds his own business pretty well. Probably never gets to open his mouth.

I'm not saying that all women make good mothers-in-law, and if you have a hellion for one please remember that I have admitted there are exceptions. I have observed a few in action. What I am saying is, if all the husbands and wives whose happiness and welfare have been enhanced by mothers-in-law were to get together, they couldn't be crowded into all the stadiums in the American and National leagues. One fair-sized Eagles' Hall could hold the ones whose

Telephone Directories To Be Mailed

DISTRIBUTION of new telephone directories will start here Friday and is expected to be completed early next week. It was announced yesterday by Budd Van Horn, local manager of the Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania.

Approximately 16,000 copies of the new blue-covered book will be delivered to telephone customers in this vicinity by a special force of men, Van Horn said. This is a slight increase over last year's distribution.

The new directory contains approximately 11,950 alphabetical listings of telephone customers in Bushkill, Cresco, Delaware Water Gap, Mount Pocono, Newfoundland, Pocono Lake and Stroudsburg. This is an increase of nearly 200 listings over the 1957 edition.

There are 3,985 classified listings of business and professional customers in the Yellow Pages of the new book, the manager stated.

New Numbers
"The directory lists new Terminal numbers which will become effective for telephones in Mount Pocono on Sunday, July 6, and new TWInoaks numbers which will become effective for telephones in the Tobyhanna section at the same time," Van Horn said.

"The information pages of the book also give a complete summary of instructions for making local and out-of-town calls on and after July 6," he added.

When the new central office numbers are established and new TWInoaks numbers become effective, there will be important changes in the method of making calls, he explained.

Calls between Terminal and TWInoaks telephones will be completed by dialing the first two letters of the central office name and the five figures of the desired number as listed in the new directory.

On calls from both Terminal and TWInoaks telephones to telephones in Stroudsburg and Delaware Water Gap, the customer will first dial the code figure "2" and then give the desired number to the operator.

Van Horn said that telephone users in this general area can be sure of getting the fastest service on all their calls by checking the new telephone directory for correct numbers and for accurate calling instructions before making calls on and after Sunday, July 6.

Playhouse

Production
Bears Mark
Of 'Genius'

By Leonard Randolph

MOUNTAINHOME — It is a rare occasion in Summer theatre when a reviewer finds a production which bears the pure mark of genius. "Separate Tables" at Pocono Playhouse this week is, quite happily, one of them.

Terence Rattigan's two episodes in the lives of a group of seaside hotel residents have been brilliantly staged by John O'Shaughnessy in the finest job this sensitive and expert director has done in years. He has an excellent group of actors on hand for the event and their combined efforts illuminate all the humorous and tragic nuances of the two plays.

The first of these is "Table By the Window". It is the story of a down-at-the-heels ex-government minister, his former wife and their "chance" meeting at the hotel. There is, in reality, no "play" here. It is a retrospective dissection of a broken marriage in which three characters explore the conflicts.

Literary Gums
Yet it is much more than this. In its closing scene, for while Rattigan has concentrated his literary guns on a personalized story (and has used a "triangle" in a somewhat trite manner) he has something of importance to say about the need human beings have for one another. In an earlier time John Malcolm and Mrs. Shankland (the wife who has since remarried) may have been proud and fiery people. But when the curtain falls, the pride has been sucked away by the blunt, erosive breakers of loneliness. It has no "happy" ending. Unless, of course, you can see the happiness in two people who have a chance to stop treading water and begin to learn to swim.

Rattigan's second play is a far better one. It is well constructed, subtly plotted. And it has an emotionally powerful punch.

"Table Number Seven" is also an exploration of the relationships between people. But in this play Rattigan has drawn everyone in the hotel into the comic-tragic maelstrom. Its central characters are Major Pollock, who is a chronic liar and a man obsessed by insecurity and fear in his relations with all humans and women in particular; Mrs. Ralston-Bell, a gossiping "grande dame" who is one of the perpetual judges with whom the human race is saddled and her daughter, a frustrated, trapped rabbit of a girl.

There is a sharp, penetrating view of human nature and the groping horror through which some men must move before they find that love is something more than a four-letter word.

All of the acting in the production is splendid. Basil Rathbone has the dual roles of the Major and the former government minister. His performance in the latter role is fine. He has brought dignity and force to the part, for all its shabbiness. He has a tendency toward racing through his lines now and then, obscuring their effect. But his interpretation of the major is very nearly without flaw. It is tightly-reasoned and skillfully underplayed.

The rest of the actors are seen in single roles which are repeated in each play. Ann Shoemaker contributes a devastating and incisive Mrs. Ralston-Bell. Lucy Ladau's portrait of an aging racing fancier is broadly comic yet utterly human and believable. There are two fine performances by Ralph Purdom (who is especially good in the second play) and Ann Stanwell as a young couple. Barbara Lester, Georgia Harvey and Edgar Kent are equally effective.

Supporting Actors

For my money the two best supporting actors are Audrey Ridgwell and Catherine Proctor. Miss Ridgwell has two key scenes — one in each play — and she plays them beautifully. Miss Proctor is one of the most genuinely touching comedienne I've ever seen. Her line delivery is unfailingly sharp. Her portrait of the bewildered, well-meaning Lady Matheson is revealing and delightful.

There is no doubt, though, that "Separate Tables" is pretty much a triumph for Geraldine Page. Miss Page has achieved something of a reputation for being a "mannered" actress in her previous appearances in New York. She has evolved a highly personal style of acting which is either to your taste or is not.

In "Separate Tables", she is magnificent. Everything about her two performances is controlled, dramatic, gently humorous and enchanting. There are "mannerisms" in her acting, of course. But they belong to the two women she is playing and there is absolutely no relation between Mrs. Shankland and the terrified Sybil Ralston-Bell.

At one moment in "Table Number Seven", Miss Page dis-

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

They had a handsome and salubrious crowd out for the Ann Logan card party at Tamiment yesterday afternoon, and a grand day for having it. It was sort of a summer reunion for many of the women who haven't seen each other since the May club meetings.

Everybody liked the organdy aprons they had for prizes, but they don't think the Ann Logan members sewed them with their own fair hands. They were the kind you just cut out, and all they needed were sharp scissors and a steady hand.

And the reason why so many drivers of the long caravan of home-coming cars found it so hard to hold the cars back on the hills could partly be accounted for by the fact they had a lot of extra pounds on the way down than they had on the way up. Diets went by the board in the face of those trays of sandwiches, and French pastries.

Speaking of diets, nobody could have been on a diet at that birthday celebration at the Gregory's summer home on Monday. Nine chickens they ate.

Which reminds me that Mrs. Gregory is glad of the warmer weather. The Gregory cottage is always the scene of lots of organization picnics. She had two of them during last week's cold wave. The guests may have been cold, but Lida wasn't. She met her guests wearing her old seal skin coat and wool hat and mittens.

Speaking of odd attire — thank goodness, I'm writing this column and not the women who saw me at the card party yesterday or the men in the back shop whose comments weren't suitable for family fare.

Ann Logan Card Party At Tamiment

Tamiment—Some 185 persons attended the first Summer card party sponsored by the Anna Logan Society of the General Hospital for the benefit of the hospital, held at Tamiment yesterday afternoon.

The tables were set in the lounge outside of the main dining room, with prizes for each table: aprons which the members of the society had made during their winter meeting work sessions. Other prizes, donated by local merchants, were also awarded.

Refreshments of sandwiches, French pastries and coffee were served by the management of Tamiment.

Hamilton PTA Winds Up Its Year

Sciota — John Edinger presided at a special meeting of the Hamilton Township Parent-Teacher Association held at the Hamilton Elementary School, Sciota, on Wednesday night.

Mr. Edinger reported that the May Day Festival and Sally Starr show had been an outstanding success. He expressed his sincere thanks and appreciation to all members and friends who had helped in any way in this all-out effort of the PTA to raise funds for school purposes.

All business for the 1957-58 school term was completed and the books of the organization were turned over to the auditing committee.

The next meeting of the Hamilton PTA is scheduled to be held on the fourth Monday night in September. The place will be the all-purpose room of the Hamilton Elementary School, Sciota. The time of the meeting will be 8 p.m. Newly elected president William Hilda-brandt will preside.

Miss Elaine Smith Bride Of William H. Fahringer

Miss Elaine Barbara Smith, daughter of Mrs. Franklin F. Smith, 116 Lee Ave., Stroudsburg, and the late Franklin L. Smith, became the bride of William Harry Fahringer, son of Mrs. Mae Fahringer and the late Lee H. Fahringer, of 44 Broad St., Stroudsburg, on Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg.

Rev. Charles Staples performed the ceremony with Numa Snyder as organist and Miss Sandra DeWitt, Bellefonte, as soloist. She sang "Ich Liebe Dich" by Greig and "The Lord's Prayer." Bouquets of white Summer flowers, foxglove and delphinium against a background of greens for the wedding party.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Harry Alfred Ganzenmiller wore a waltz-length gown of Chantilly lace over bluish pink satin. The fitted bodice had a low v-neckline with the lace embroidered with white iridescent sequins, and long sleeves, ending in points at the wrists. Tiny satin-covered buttons closed the back of the bodice and the sleeves. The bouffant skirt and the neck were of hand-clipped lace scallops.

She wore a tricorn of Chantilly lace edged in seed pearls with a targa of seed pearls and iridescent sequins to hold her elbow length veil, and carried a colonial bouquet of bluish pink roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Carol Perkins, Bounton, N.J., maid of honor, and Miss Cynthia Lynn Smith, sister of the bride, bridesmaid, both wore identical gowns of pink dotted swiss with boat necklines, and white lace inserts around the bodice outlined by pink velvet bands. Pink velvet bows closed the back of the dress and trimmed the picture hats of pink starched fish net. They carried nosegays of pink roses and babies breath.

James Clugston Jr. of 511 Brown St., Stroudsburg, served as best man.

Ushers were Charles Swift of Swiftwater, and William Shook, Washington, D.C.

Following the ceremony a reception for 50 guests was held in the Regina Suite of the Penn-Stroud Hotel. The bride's mother wore a navy blue arnel suit with blossom-pink lace picture hat and accessories to match. The bridegroom's mother wore a sheath dress of white and grey embroidered eyelet with a lace hat and white accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of pink and white variegated carnations.

For her going-away costume, the bride wore a white sharkskin sailor chemise dress with red trim with a leghorn sailor hat, also trimmed with red. She carried a straw bag with brown leather trim and brown and white spectator shoes.

After a wedding trip to the Southern states, Mr. and Mrs. Fahringer will make their home in State College where Mr. Fahringer is an engineering student at the Pennsylvania State University.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Stroudsburg High School. The bride was graduated in the class of 1952 and is an alumna of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College. She has been teaching in the Lindenhurst, L.I., public schools.

Mr. Fahringer was graduated from Stroudsburg High School in 1951, and served in the Navy for four years. He attended Wake Forest College, Winston-Salem, N.C., before entering Penn State.

The mail brings a letter containing hints for seasoning summer picnic foods. It recommends a use of soy sauce with hamburgers—in fact, it encourages homemakers to keep soy sauce on the table along with other condiments, for use on all meats. A recipe that piques my appetite calls for two small hamburgers, pressed flat, and sandwiched together with a slice of American cheese spread with mustard and soy sauce between. Broil them eight minutes, and they're said to be delicious. Which reminds me—how many minutes until lunch hour???? Another letter carries some enlightening information about the American man and the dishes he DOESN'T wash. Apparently the cartoons, showing men with aprons around their waists and dishtowels in their hands, are wrong—all wrong, as Procter & Gamble learned when it conducted an inquiry before unveiling its new Ivory Liquid Detergent. According to the findings, 93% of the women think that men should NOT do dishes (and I agree). Eighty four per cent, however, think that dish drying now and then does not lower masculine dignity. (As a matter of fact, on occasion it can be a cozy little job, wouldn't you say?) Sixty-one per cent of our American husbands actually do the dishes on occasion, but 21% object strenuously to being "roped in." And, when a man does the dishes, he does them well. As a matter of fact, 87% of the women say their husbands do as good a job as they, if not better. All of this is very interesting—but even more than that. It proves that dish pans are still primarily for ladies as the soaps that go in them. So the new Ivory detergent has a pleasant floral perfume that makes it tempting to the woman customer . . . In my travels around the store, I must admit returning time and again to look at the prettily styled Jade Mist nightie on display in the lingerie department. Full length, scalloped at the bottom, and with the lace of the bodice enchantingly repeated down one side, it is as lovely as a dream come true. I somehow wish the girls hadn't pointed out that it's just my size and a very becoming color—it would have been much easier to stay away from if I hadn't known . . . Come to think of it, we women are strange creatures, aren't we?—wanted to look just as attractive asleep as awake. Reminds me of the interview I read some time ago when a fluffy-brained starlet said she always puts on full makeup before going to bed, because she owes it to her public to look beautiful if she should die from "too many sleeping pills or something." That's a thought. Not a very deep one maybe—but a thought! . . . If you're reducing, DON'T LOOK at all those jars of Ruffeto preserves on sale back in our Tea Room. How I'd love to have jars of everything on my kitchen shelves—the mammoth Big Shot olives, the cinnamon pears, pickled peaches, etc. Those stuffed oranges are delicious too—and you need only one slice to a dinner plate, they're so rich and filling . . . When I was small almost every well-accessoried living room had an incense burner. Today we rarely see them—but our gift department is selling a most unusual brass one from India at 2.98. Boxes of incense are on sale there too . . . It seemed to me one of the aprons in our notions department, priced at 3:15, was fairly expensive, until I discovered that it's reversible—and ever so lovely. One side is a cotton print in gay colors on pink; the other side is of white organdy with the print showing through. Just the thing for the housewife who spills gravy on the first wearing!

RECORD

By Bob Clark
Sports Editor

WE DON'T LIKE to peer into the crystal ball too often, for many times it comes up and knocks us on our proverbial ear. But taking a chance again with recent showings of two Stroudsburg High pitchers gives us the courage to say the Mountaineers will hardly be hard up in pitching next season.

The excellent showing of Billy Schoonover in Babe Ruth ball this year and the improved hill work of Tom Gross in the Bi-State loop indicates that Stroudsburg High's diamond fortunes in '59 will be rich in talent.

As everyone knows, in high school ball pitching is at least 80 to 85 per cent of the game. From the looks of things now, Mountaineer coach Jerry Stulgaitis will have the Lehigh Valley League by the horns. That is if the bull doesn't get tankorous and give our fair-headed Lehigh Valley League entrants a toss they'll never recover from.

Two new coaches will make their football tutoring debuts in the fall here. At East Stroudsburg Larue (Skip) Steelfox, a Penn State gradman for three years, will help Jack Kist mold the 1958 edition of the Cavalier eleven, while at Stroudsburg High, Bob Wert will assist newly named Mountaineer grid boss Walt Bjorn in getting ready the West Main St. grid show.

Steelfox, a fine center at Penn State before an injury curtailed his career, also was just as fine a student. During his intercollegiate days, Skip was eighth in his class scholastically. Wert will be remembered hereabouts as the Catawqua High quarterback who could do no wrong when calling signals for the Rough Riders. In college—Elizabethtown—Wert, who also will be the Mountaineers' head basketball coach, was a keen student of basketball. So much in fact that he was asked to coach the 'Bethans' JVs his senior year.

It will be an interesting year locally for football and basketball fans. New coaches Bjorn and Wert will be making their first starts in the coaching ranks, while over at East Stroudsburg Teachers Dr. George Ockershausen will get his baptism of fire as head grid boss of the Warriors eleven.

New coaches anywhere make for interesting conversation and reading. We sincerely hope all will be expressed daily "cum laude."

John and Clair Specht's Jonaire Kennels added International laurels to their many won United States honors in two Canadian dog shows a week ago.

Ch. Jonaire Pocono Top Hit, a miniature Schnauzer male, owned and bred by the Mt. Pocono dog fanciers, took best of breed in the All-Championship Show at Ottawa, Canada.

Top Hit also placed second in the Terrier group and a first in another show on June 19.

Jonaire Pocono Rough Rider was highest scoring dog in the Open Obedience Work at the two-day classic. He scored 200 points the first day (perfection) and 199½ the second. The canine, handled by Mrs. Specht, is owned by Richard Stanton, of Lancaster.

Earlier last week, Jonaire Smart Cookie, a female miniature Schnauzer, took best of winners and gained two points toward her championship. The Specht's white toy poodle, Davus Mister Show Boy, making its first start, took reserve winners in the same show.

Strouds Martins Creek, Tie For Lead

McCormick's HR Big Belt In 7th Win

MARTIN'S CREEK—The Strouds moved into a first place knot with Bethlehem in the Blue Mountain League last night, dumping Martins Creek, 8-3 here.

Al McCormick's two-run homer and a three-for-three batting performance by Dick Gray moved Frank Radler's nine to their seventh triumph in 11 league starts.

Al Schoch, with relief from Radler in the last inning (the sixth), got credit for the win.

Russ Staples, the Strouds catcher, broke out of a slump, and banded out two hits in three trips to drive in a pair of tallies.

Mr. Robert Clark
Sports Editor
The Daily Record
Stroudsburg, Penna.

Dear Mr. Clark:

I read with real pleasure the merits of our Athletic Director "Mr. Basketball" in your narrated column dated 19 June 1958. Clair Bee's capabilities and fame are so modestly concealed by him that it does my heart good to have a man like yourself hold him up for all to see. You pleased him too even though you made him blush and if you will forgive a personal note, you branded yourself a man of discernment by focusing your attention on a man who is good medicine for all ages. He is one swell guy.

Sincerely,
Nelson Dingley, III

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick said Tuesday he might not make a decision in the Ed Bouchee case until after the All-Star game in Baltimore, July 8.

Gibson Successfully Opens Wimbledon Bid

By STERLING SLAPPEY
WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Althea Gibson opened the defense of her Wimbledon tennis championship Tuesday by breezing past Australian Mary Hellyer as most of the favorites advanced.

Maria Bueno of Brazil and Christine Truman of England, teen-agers ranked with the 30-year-old Harlem girl as the great powers of women's tennis, also won easily on another showery day. Seven of the 12 U. S. girls survived.

With the exception of a few first round men's matches, postponed from Monday's rainy opener, the program on the second day of the 72nd Wimbledon championships was given over mostly to women's singles. Several of players drew first-round byes and actually started play in the second round. There also was a smattering of men's doubles matches.

Easy Victory
Miss Gibson, top-seeded player who was beaten by Miss Truman in Wightman Cup play, eliminated the Australian girl with the loss of only two games 6-0, 6-2 in a second-round match.

The 17-year-old Miss Truman bested Mrs. J. L. Delofoord 6-0, 6-1 in another second-round match.

Miss Bueno, 18, fashionably attired in a tennis dress decorated with tiny green palm trees around the waist, disposed of England's Mrs. Hazel Cheadle 6-1, 6-2 in the first round.

In the men's competition the only important result was a victory for Mervyn Rose, the scowling Australian.

Rose, seeded third, ousted Wladyslaw Skonecki, a Pole, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1. This match was postponed Monday because of the rain.

Foul weather and a lack of interest in women's tennis held down attendance to 17,868. Only Karol Fageros of Miami, Fla., among the seeded players, had any real trouble. By the luck of the draw, she was pitted against Sally Moore, a 17-year-old budding star from Bakersfield, Calif.

Miss Fageros won a grim baseline duel in the first set and then broke through Miss Moore late in the second set for her 6-3, 7-5 victory.

Obscure Wins
Mrs. Margaret Osborne duPont of Wilmington, Del., the 1947 Wimbledon queen, eliminated Mrs. Pearl Panton of Britain 6-3, 6-0 and auburn-haired Margaret Varner of El Paso, Texas won a baseline slugging battle with Ilse Buding, German-born but now listed as stateless, 7-5, 6-4.

Third-seeded Mrs. Dorothy Knodel of New York defeated Mrs. V. A. Roberts of Britain 7-5, 6-2.

Mimi Arnold, sixth-ranked American from Redwood City, Calif., defeated Britain's Pat Wheeler 2-6, 6-3, 6-0 and Janet Hopps of Seattle downed Britain's Jean Bostock 6-3, 6-3.

Among the American losers was Louise Snow, of Ventura, Calif., who fell before Rula Morrison of New Zealand 11-9, 6-3.

Mrs. Nick Carter of San Francisco lost to Lorraine Coghlan of Australia 6-0, 6-3. Isabel Trocicole, New York, bowed to Sheila Armstrong of Britain 6-1, 9-7 and Mrs. Wilma Smith of Berkeley, Calif., lost 6-4, 9-7 to Sonia Cox of New Zealand.

Seen Speedier And Better

Bryan Leads American Field In 'Fastest' 500-Mile Race

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Leading American drivers Tuesday predicted the Monza 500-mile—already the world's fastest auto race—would be speedier and better this year.

The Americans, led by Indianapolis winner Jimmy Bryan, made the forecast as they arrived here for Sunday's race.

Five of the 11 American drivers were in the first Monza 500-mile last year. Speaking from experience, they said they were sure improvements in the cars and in the Monza track would make it a better race.

But more than anything, they said, the presence of top European drivers would make it a first-class contest. Last year leading drivers from the European and South American circuits—including Argentina's Juan Manuel Fangio and Britain's Stirling Moss—boycotted the race. They said the Monza track was too dangerous and the race was rigged to favor the American cars.

American drivers called the Europeans "bad sports."

"I'm glad to see the Europeans are in the race this year because what we really need is some competition," Bryan said.

He won last year's Monza race, chewing a cigar through the entire 500 miles while averaging more than 160 miles per hour.

Last year, six of the nine American cars starting the race were forced to withdraw as the rough track just about tore them up.

Dunn-Courtland Records 2 Tilts

TWO GAMES have been rescheduled by Dunn-Courtland's team of the Monroe Softball League. Today at the CLU Park field, D-C will meet Olympic Athletic Service, starting at 6 p.m.

Tomorrow at the same field (CLU), Dunn-Courtland will meet DeCamp's in a league duel, starting at 6 p.m.

Freeman, Shick Lead Local 1724

LOCAL 1724 moved further away in the Industrial Softball League last night, making Cortes' ninth victim, 12-1. Local 1724 has lost only once.

Two-hit hurling by B. Freeman and the batting of Bob Shick, who garnered a homer and two doubles, paced the league leaders to victory.

Rory Calhoun 2-1 Choice Over Boyd

CHICAGO (AP) — Hard-punching Rory Calhoun is a 2-1 favorite to repeat an earlier triumph over Bobby Boyd in a national TV bout between two ranking middleweights in Chicago Stadium Wednesday night.

Calhoun, 23, from White Plains, N. Y., scored a second-round TKO against Chicagoan Boyd, 24, in New York's Madison Square Garden Nov. 22.

Calhoun, with a 34-41 record including 18 knockouts, is ranked sixth by Ring Magazine and seventh by the National Boxing Assn. Boyd, 48-43 with 22 knockouts, is rated eighth by both.

The bout will be telecast over ABC beginning at 9 p.m., EST. Scoring will be on the five-point basis, a round winner getting five points, a round loser any lesser number and an even round called five-five.

Since Calhoun and Boyd have fought five times, defeating Randy Sandy and Eddie G. Young Jack Beau and Yolande Pompey. However, he was outpointed by Joey Giardello in his last start, May 5, and Jan. 20 was knocked out in four by Spider Webb.

Rocketeer Report Views Education

city against the total creative capacity of its people. Our most critical need a decade hence may be unknown today. Rather we must prepare ourselves for a constant and growing demand for talents of all varieties, and must attempt to meet the specific needs of the future by elevating the quality and quantity of talented individuals of all kinds.

One of our great strengths as a people has been our flexibility and adaptability under the successive waves of change that have marked our history. Never have we needed the trait more than today. It is for this reason that we should educate our young people to meet an unknown need rather than to prepare them for needs already identified.

C. The Problem of Change

One of the characteristics of a dynamic society is that its frontiers are constantly changing. The frontier of today becomes familiar territory of tomorrow.

A dynamic society requires that its members be flexible and adaptable to change.

D. The Social Ceiling on Individual Performance

A consequence of the complexity and specialization of modern society has been the increasing prominence of organization in our lives. But while complex organization is necessary, it is also costly. It is often a stifling atmosphere for the exercise of individual creativity, and it may induce a conformity that becomes a threat to the society's vitality.

E. Excellence in a Democracy

The eighteenth-century philosophers who made equality a central term in our political vocabulary never meant to imply that men are equal in all respects. Nor do Americans today take such a view. It is possible to state in fairly simple terms the views concerning equality which would receive most widespread endorsement in our country today. The fundamental view is that in the final matters of human existence all men are equally worthy of our care and concern. Further, we believe that men should be equal in enjoyment of certain familiar legal, civil and political rights. They should, as the phrase goes, be equal before the law.

But men are unequal in their native capacities and their motivations, and therefore in their attainments. In elaborating our national views of equality, the most widely accepted means of dealing with this problem has been to emphasize equality of opportunity.

The great advantage of the conception of equality of opportunity is that it candidly recognizes differences in endowment and motivation and accepts the certainty of differences in achievement. By allowing free play to these differences it preserves the freedom to excel which counts for so much in terms of individual aspirations, and has produced so much of mankind's greatness.

Every democracy must encourage high individual performance. If it does not then it closes itself off from the main springs of its dynamism and talent and imagination, and the traditional democratic invitation to the individual to realize his full potentialities becomes meaningless.

With respect to the pursuit of excellence there are several considerations that we must keep firmly in mind. First, our conception of excellence must embrace many kinds of achievement. It is a product of ability and motivation and character. Finally, we must recognize that judgments of differences in talent are not judgments of differences in human worth.

Want Dream Home? Build It Yourself

By Gene Herrick

MEMPHIS, Tenn., (AP)—An enterprising Memphis university professor, who five years ago had only a "speaking" acquaintance with a hammer and saw, is now living in his dream home which he built himself.

Dr. Carl H. Linden, professor of German at Memphis State University, got into his energetic project because he wanted to keep busy, because he wanted a home and because he desired his home to be just the way he wanted it.

With this objective, Dr. Linden rounded up all the books he could find on home building and secured all the necessary information on building code requirements.

The wiry, 50-year-old professor, who was born and raised in Gelsenkirchen, Westphalia, Germany, taught German and worked at the university for seven hours a day and then worked late into the evening on the house. This was in addition to the paper grading for his classes.

The 8-room house, including two baths and a recreation area, sits on a two-acre fan-shaped lot on a wind-swept hill in an east Memphis suburb. It is valued for tax purposes at about $9,000. Its actual value is higher.

Wife Also Helped

Dr. Linden did all the work himself. Actually, he hired a roofer for a day because of a threat of rain. Linden hired a tile setter for two days because he didn't have a diamond cutter, an expensive implement. Linden said he did all the mixing and all the man had to do was put the tile in place. Linden's wife, Mnierva, also helped out.

The three Linden children, Brenda, 11, Cora, 7, and Carl, 5, enjoyed the house-building, and most important, survived unharmed the dangers of an active building site.

The house, which took three years and four months to build, is his personal unique design. Planned for the hot, muggy Memphis climate, the house has eight double casement windows, five double-hung windows, two louvered windows, one sash window, four outside doors, and one double outside door, all to provide cross ventilation for the rooms, including the three bedrooms. All are screened.

There are 14 outside corners in the house, and three-foot eaves on most of the house for protection against the sun and rain. "You don't need air-conditioning in my house," Linden said.

Linden used heavy girders and placed the floor joists closer together for the support on the foundation. He also used sheets of non-rust metal between the cement block foundation, the 38 brick piers, and the beams to protect the wood against termites.

Ventilated Below

There is no basement, but Linden utilized the four-foot area between the ground and the floor to place his heating equipment. The area under the house is ventilated.

The living room, 24-feet square, is separated by a solid plywood wall with two sections fitted with hinges. In this manner the back part can be turned into a dining area or a recreation playroom for the children in bad weather.

Every room has built-in storage cabinets or closets, and the children's rooms have built-in chests of drawers. The den has a built-in book cabinet. The floors are hardwood.

He has a screened-in back porch for a cool-eating area. There is a flag-stone patio veranda by the back door.

The H-shaped house has an adjoining garage with a breezeway between.

Linden dug the foundation, put it in and did all of the carpentry work, electrical and plumbing work.

"The house is extremely com-

THIS TEEN-AGE DREAM ROOM, with a decorating scheme of green and white and accents of blue and turquoise, is designed to a young girl's taste. Big green buttons are used for the button-on cafe curtains and trim the bedspread and dressing table. Even a beginning seamstress can stitch these fabric furnishings, to give new life to an old room.

Fabric Furnishings Most Important Step In Giving Teen-Age Girl's Room New Look

By Dorothy Roe
Associated Press Women's Editor

SOMEWHERE between the ages of 13 and 17, a girl gets the urge to redecorate her room from stem to stern.

Here's where a mother needs to use all the tact and patience she can find. The room should look fresh and pretty, with clear colors and dainty accessories. Maintenance and upkeep must be easy, and the change should be accomplished without buying a whole roomful of new furniture.

New fabric furnishings are the most important step to give a room a new look, and even an amateur seamstress can whip out new curtains and bedspreads, with the aid of her sewing machine.

Crisp Modern Look

Local sewing center experts suggest a color scheme of green and white, accented with shades of turquoise and blue, for a girl's room with a crisp modern look.

Color inspiration for the room comes from the sailcloth used for bedspread and cafe curtains—a print of tiny green shamrocks on white.

The green is picked up by the solid-color dust ruffle, the big buttons on the cafe curtains and the throw pillows. White organdy for dressing table skirt and tie-back curtains is frothy and delicate.

And the best point is—everything can be tossed into the washing machine.

air displaces warm air, which rises into the return grille of the unit.

Important

Insulation is important, says the Council, because it can save money on original equipment costs, and operating expenses, and make the cooling system more efficient.

The Council adds that a reputable contractor should be consulted, both for the air conditioning and mineral wool insulation, since the job must be "engineered" just as in a heating installation.

Use Plate For Guide

Here are suggestions for making these fabric furnishings:

The dust ruffle of solid green is stitched to a muslin section that covers the box springs of the bed. This keeps the ruffle firmly in place. The printed spread is lined in muslin. The pillow cover has a back opening, which is held together with upholstery snaps. Covers for the foam rubber throw pillows are closed with zippers.

In making the scallops for the bedspread and dressing table skirt, use a plate for a guide and trace scallops with dressmaker's chalk on the wrong side of the fabric. Cut the lining to match. The cuff on the dressing table skirt is stiffened with buckram.

Although buttons are used for trim on the bedspread and dressing table, they are functional on the cafe curtains, which button over the rod.

Wood Still In Demand For Homes

IN AN AGE of plastics, miracle fibers, and other synthetics, wood still is man's most "home-like" house building material, in the opinion of New York Architect Norman Cherner.

"Wood is warm, alive, exciting," Cherner says. "Nothing made by man can ever replace it."

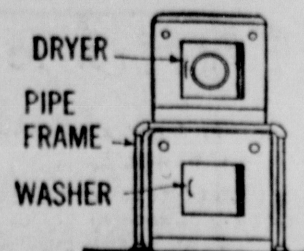

Cherner, who designed the International Trade Fair House which attracted thousands of visitors in Vienna, Belgrade and other European cities, adds:

"I prefer an element of naturalness in my homes. I agree with Frank Lloyd Wright in that respect, at least. I like things organic, natural. That's why I stress wood siding and millwork in almost all my houses."

The architect also stresses wood windows with wood siding materials because "wood goes with wood. In fact, I like to go all out and use French doors in rows and big banks of windows, with plenty of wood parts for their special eye appeal."

Spread Out Carpet

CARPETS are important in sound-proofing a house as well as for improving appearances. Carpets not only deaden the footfall but also kill echoes in rooms.

DRYER ABOVE

CORNER INSTALLATION

WALL INSTALLATION

Q—We would like to buy a dryer to match our automatic washer but we have no storage place for the dryer. Can it be mounted in any way over the washer?

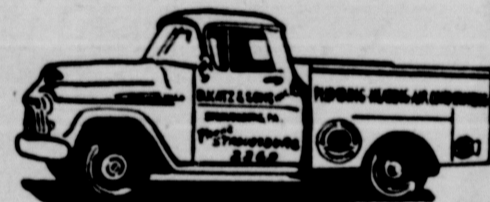

A—The dryer could be installed "piggy back," as shown in the sketch, by building a platform for it above the washer. Legs of one-inch pipe and a piece of 3/4-inch plywood should be strong enough—but be certain the cleats supporting the side or sides against the wall are securely fastened to the wall studs.

Ideal System For Homes

"LIQUID COOLING" is the ideal system for air conditioning a house that has hot-water heating, says the Better Heating-Cooling Council.

When a house has no heating ducts, a contractor can "snake" flexible tubing through walls without opening them up.

The tubing carries chilled water from a central unit to each room, and air cooled by the water is blown through grilles in the walls. The cooled

Outdoor Man Masters Art Of Fire Making

By Hugh A. Mulligan
Ap Newsfeatures Writer

PRIMITIVE man is supposed to have discovered fire by tossing a rock at a dinosaur, missing, striking another rock and setting off a huge conflagration with the resulting spark.

Several thousand years later, outdoor man—the civilized fellow tossing matches by the book-load into a barbecue pit—wonders if it ever was that easy.

Starting a fire, a problem that has tried the patience of cave-men, explorers, Boy Scouts and backyard chefs down through the ages, has always been such a formidable task that one wonders whether arsonists aren't the best paid members of the underworld.

Even the Boy Scouts have surrendered to the realities of the situation and rolled back their old Second Class requirement that called for starting a fire with only two matches.

But at last relief is in sight. Inventors have come to the rescue and solved a problem that stone age man is supposed to have disposed of before the dawn of history.

Homemakers who despaired of ever getting a parttime job in a blast furnace because of their ineptitude at starting a fire, can find comfort in a variety of do-it-yourself fire-making aids. Happily, none of them involves rubbing sticks together.

Kindling No Problem

For a small investment, a fellow can procure an imposing array of incendiary implements guaranteed to set his hearth to blazing and his barbecue pit to roaring.

First, there's the matter of kindling wood. No need to dash about the backyard picking up twigs, old berry boxes and empty Scotch crates when several manufacturers now offer "concentrated kindling wood" at 49 cents a package. The stuff is guaranteed to go up like a strawberry box, which also sells for about 49 cents, strawberries included.

And forget about old newspapers, too. The Cape Horn fire lighters, in the opinion of its manufacturer, "eliminates the use of paper" and thereby qualifies as the "perfect companion for fireplace and barbecue pit."

Except for its gleaming brass finish, the Cape Horn item looks suspiciously like a locomotive engineer's oil can. It accomplishes its combustible purpose by squirting kerosene on your kindling.

If your fire still refuses to light, it's time to try a soapstone fire starter, a torch-like affair that looks like the original flaming shaft. The idea is to light the fire starter, hold it aloft for a moment shishka-bob fashion to get a good flame working, then thrust it into the middle of your kindling.

Flame Comes to Life

Failing that, you can proceed to an electric fire starter that is supposed to ignite your charcoal briquettes almost on contact.

Now, at last, a spark has been struck and a flame is leaping to life. Or at least we hope. The next step is to keep it going. Since chemists define fire as the rapid combination of oxygen with other matter, there is a compelling need to rapidly bring more oxygen into the fireplace.

But no need to blow your brains out or wear out your arm fanning the flames. Again several of necessity's ingenious offspring are on hand to help you. There is, for instance, the "blo-poke," a long brass tube resembling a glass blower's rod. You puff gently into the tube and a virtual hurricane whirls out the other end.

If that doesn't do the trick, you replace your own breath with a synthetic product emitted from a battery-operated fire blower, which looks amazingly like a woman's hair dryer. In fact, there's no reason why you can't haul out the little woman's hair dryer on a long extension cord or hook up the blower on the vacuum cleaner.

No self-respecting backyard chef would ever settle for a plain old fire—not in this age of scientific sublimity. Naturally, you'll want to dress up your blaze with factory-packaged Hickory chips, store-bought birch logs and a sprinkling of special fire powder called "chimney sweep."

"Just sprinkle chimney sweep on your fire," the package proclaims, "then all evening long watch the flames sparkle a brilliant rainbow of colors: glorious blues, greens, reds and yellows." The greens, presumably, are for ceremonial fires on St. Patrick's Day.

Giant Spatula Needed

By this time, of course, you know more about making a hot time in the old town tonight than Og, son of fire or even Vulcan himself. So you'll want to dress up your outdoor fireside with a genuine, wrought iron log holder; a combination kerosene lamp and bug killer; heavy asbestos chef's gloves for strategically rearranging hot coals, and a giant spatula capable of flipping a whole side of buffalo.

Other gimmicks and gadgets stand ready to help you during the cooking process. Your meat has been succulently cured for a day or more in an electric "Texas Smoker" to give it that old-fashioned smoked flavor.

An electric rotisserie keeps it turning, and an unbreakable pin thermometer gives you periodic readings on its progress. Overhead, a tent-sized umbrella keeps the elements from your edibles.

In the background, an electric freezer churns the ice cream and at the same time crushes ice for your drinks. Army surplus mess trays, "odor-proof" wooden spoons and shatterproof tumblers are stacked for your guests.

Even Fido, man's best friend next to fire, has been put to work hauling the groceries in a real, honest-to-gosh dog cart that sells for only $120.

While all this is going on, you settle back comfortably in a genuine Siwa camel seat originally designed, so the tag says, "for the comfort of caravan travelers on desert journeys."

Outdoor eating, thanks to the inventors, has now become almost as scientifically thrilling as indoor eating. In fact, you might want to rough it some day by going back indoors for a summer meal.

Paint Job May Reflect Stops

IN PAINTING a clapboard house, it is best to paint in horizontal strips about three feet wide. Don't stop in the middle of a strip for any sizeable amount of time. Your lunch hour may show up in the finished job. The best place to stop is at the end of a strip, or at a window or door.

Questions Answered

Q—What's the correct height from the floor for a wall socket?

A—From 12 to 18 inches in most rooms. A 48-inch height is recommended in kitchen, laundries, and workshops.

Q—Can a table top be made heat resistant?

A—Yes. After removing the old finish, apply a mixture of one-third turpentine and two-thirds linseed oil. Use a soft, clean cloth. Then rub the surface dry.

Q—The cane of a chair has stretched and now sags. Does the cane have to be replaced?

A—Not necessarily. Try turning the chair upside down and sponging the cane with hot water. This will tighten it, but let the cane dry where there is good air circulation.

Simple Tools Can Increase Closet Space

By James E. Walters

IT'S POSSIBLE to almost double the usable space in a linen closet with a minimum of effort and cost and the simplest tools.

What this does to relieve the clutter of towels, wash cloths, sheets and similar items is amazing.

The average linen closet has three or four shelves. They may be about 36 inches long and 18 inches deep . . . or perhaps 18 inches long and 36 inches deep . . . with about 24 inches between each shelf.

There are several ways to go about adding to the shelf space:

You can place an "extra" shelf between each of the present ones.

Or, you can turn much of the present stationary shelves into sliding ones so that nearly every bit of them can be used easily. A combination of these probably is best.

Also, consult the lady of the house. Nine chances out of 10—whether you're a beginning do-it-yourself or an "old pro"—it will come as a surprise to find that she's been reconciled for years to having a jumbled mass of linen in the linen closet.

The Stacking Problem

The reason is simple. Towels and wash cloths are changed frequently in the bathroom, so they're stacked to the front. But there are two types of towels and wash cloths—"family" and "company"—and the company kind, because they're not used as much, go to the back of the shelf. Sheets, tablecloths and other linens aren't changed as often as towels, further complicating the stacking problem.

So, when the wife wants, say, a "company tablecloth," it's usually at the back of the shelf under a pile of towels. She will have some very definite ideas on how she'd like to stack linens for the most convenience.

The easiest job is to install a shelf between each of the present ones. First, lift out one of the present shelves. It will be suspended from two strips of wood nailed (or perhaps screwed) into the side of the closet. You will need two similar strips for each additional shelf (1-by-2-inch furring strips are excellent) nailed through the closet wall into the studding the same as the originals.

Lumber yards carry one-inch shelving in a variety of sizes. That six inches or 12 inches wide is the most common.

Measure Old Shelf

So, if your closet is 18 inches deep, get one board six inches wide and another 12 inches. As for length, measure an old shelf. The lumber yard probably will cut it to the correct length with little or no charge.

Slip the shelving on top of the furring strips, and, presto, you have the shelf. (These widths, incidentally, are what's called nominal. A six-inch board will measure a little less. It won't be very noticeable—assuming you don't have power tools to cut them to correct size—if the shelf sits in a little from the front.)

Insulation Reduces Cost Of Heating

PROOF that thick insulation sharply reduces the cost of heating and air conditioning homes in all sections of the country has been announced in the results of a new engineering survey published in the current issue of Today's Home magazine.

Research engineers covered 127 cities in all climate zones of the country, basing their calculations on a 1,040-square-foot sample house, figuring costs of heating and cooling without insulation; and with 4 inches of mineral wool in the ceiling and 3 inches in walls. More recent recommendations call for at least 6 inches in ceilings and 3 inches in walls.

BEFORE MRS. ARTHUR P. MANTEY of Milwaukee ever set foot in her specially designed house, she knew exactly how it would be. That's because her husband, a factory supervisor, not only planned it but made an exact plywood model so they could visualize changes and improvements. There was plenty to visualize. Getting away from the usual standards Mantey designed shelves and built-in cabinets to fit his wife's five-foot height.

Shop Carefully For Air Conditioning Unit

BUY your air conditioning as carefully as you would select a family doctor, choose a new home, or buy a car, warns the Better Business Bureau.

In a nationally circulated booklet, "When You Buy Air Conditioning," the Bureau lists rules to help you make sure your new cooling system will be long-lasting, efficient, and economical. Here are the principal rules:

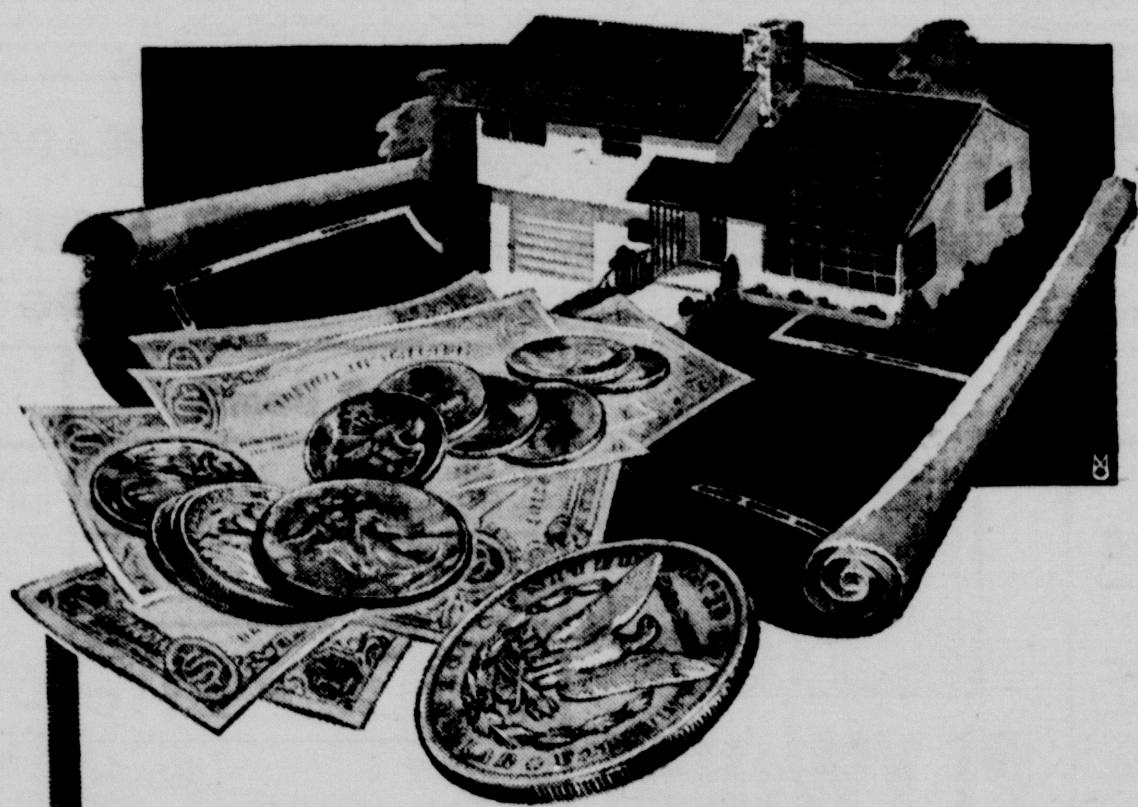

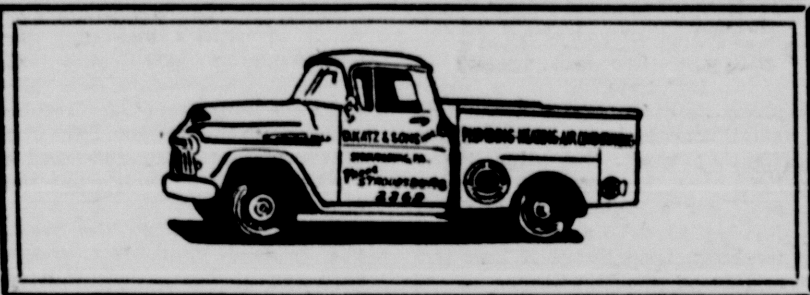

1. Know the reputation of the person you buy from and the manufacturer of the equipment.
2. Watch out for price cutters. They can't always assure proper installation and service, and may sell you old and little-known equipment for which parts are not available.

3. Choose a reputable contractor who will check your home conditions carefully, work up a system tailored for the house, and stand behind his installation.

4. Make sure electrical wiring is adequate. A good contractor will do this and install any additional wiring necessary.

Build Now? Yes, If You Measure Up

SHOULD YOU build your own new house instead of buying a ready-made one?

Here are four factors by which to grade yourself as a prospect for a specially-designed home:

1. Build, if you own or can acquire a plot of ground in a neighborhood you like.

2. Build, if you've toured the housing developments and inspected individual new homes for sale without finding anything that satisfies you.

3. Build, if your desires are highly individual and you have the plan you want, or if you know an architect who can design these desires into a house.

4. Build, if your budget is flexible enough to meet the cost. Usually it costs more to build a house than it does to buy a ready-built one.

Any Style Can Be Yours

What are the principal advantages of building new as opposed to buying new?

Location—You can put the house where you want it.

Style—Any style can be yours if you're willing and able to pay.

Space—If you've owned or rented a house previously, you have a good idea of your minimum space requirements and can provide for them.

Traffic pattern—You know the habits of your family best and can work out the house's traffic pattern accordingly with the architect.

Building materials—You can make your own selection of materials which will give the best service and will look best.

Careful Planning a Must

Other advantages of custom construction include rooms in sizes you like, work and play areas where you want them, and less waste space generally. Careful planning is the most important factor in getting started.

Do keep your financial status in mind so that you will not go overboard in size and style of the house and its equipment.

Do investigate both the architect and/or the builder before you commit yourself.

Do follow the advice of the architect after you have selected him.

Don't change design and equipment after construction actually has started. It will cost you money.

Don't make a nuisance of yourself at the building site. You will slow things down.

Need An Extra Closet? Put One On Door; One-Inch Finished Lumber Best To Use

HAVE you ever wished for a closet in the bathroom where you could stash away bed clothes and shoes, or soiled garden clothes?

If you have a panel or solid slab door, you can have one in a short time that will keep the bathroom free of clothes litter. Or if you need an extra storage space in another room, a closet on a door will handle a lot of things.

Sizes will vary depending on the door, but you should use one-inch finished lumber. The depth of your closet will depend on the width of your board.

From 4 1/4 to 5 inches is about as wide as you'll want without making the closet too big to detract from your bathroom. Splitting a 1 x 10 should give you the right width.

Toe-nail your boards to the door to form a rectangular box. Be sure that you drive into the solid part of the door or it won't hold. Give yourself enough clearance so that you can get your fingers around the knob.

Also, make sure that you don't have a wall right next to the hinged side of your door so that the closet will prevent you from opening the door all the way.

After you have nailed the board around the door, you can close in your closet by nailing the same size boards on the sides and top. To fill in the bottom, give yourself a depth of one foot so that you can store shoes, toilet tissue, and other items.

Regular cabinet door hinges, catches at the top and bottom, and a handle, finish out this closet. You can put hooks inside to hang your clothes on, or you can make some shelves.

Householders with hollow core doors will find that it would be difficult to nail such a closet on and make it hold. However, it could be built to size and then affixed to the door by using angle-braces and bolting to the solid top and bottom parts of the door.

AN EXTRA CLOSET can be built on a panel or solid slab door to give you added storage space in bedroom or bathroom.

Proper Storage For Chemical

CALCIUM chloride often is used to absorb moisture from the air, such as eliminating dampness in closets. It must be stored and handled with care. Keep bags on wood supports away from floor dampness, but not in an attic, where accidental breakage may cause seepage into wood floors and plastered ceiling. When this chemical is liquefied by exposure to air, dispose of it where it cannot damage concrete or vegetation. It corrodes iron, so flush it well if you empty it down a drain.

High Cost Of Baths

IT TAKES more labor to put together the walls and plumbing of one small bathroom than it takes to frame a three-bedroom house, says House & Home, professional magazine of the home building industry. The average bathroom costs at least five times as much per square foot as any other room except the kitchen, which builders list as No. 2 in cost per square foot.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES FREEMAN, of Atlanta, Ga., had a walk-in pantry off the kitchen in their home before the baby came. Now they have a walk-in nursery for Christina Louise, their young daughter, shown above with the mother. The baby's bed is built-in, atop convenient wood storage cabinets and high enough so there is no bending over to lift the child. A folding wood gate slides from wall to wall to make the bed a crib after the baby is tucked in.

Questions, Answers For Builder, Repairman

Q—How can you make an extension ladder stay in place at the bottom?

A—Fashion a pair of grips from heavy strap steel and attach them to the lower outside faces of the ladder legs with heavy bolts and wing nuts, as shown in the sketch. At times when the grips are not needed, loosen the top nuts and remove the lower nuts and bolts. The grips then are turned up on the ladder legs and bolted out of the way.

Q—Can a broken ladder rung be repaired?

A—Cut the rung off flush with the inside of the rails. Make two blocks of hardwood, drilling holes in them the same diameter as the new rung. Fit the rung tightly into the two blocks and then bolt or nail the whole assembly securely to the inside of the rails.

Q—We'd like to paint our concrete patio but it's pitted and rough. Can it be smoothed?

A—Mix a paste of glycerine and yellow lead oxide and apply with a trowel, smoothing it carefully. You can paint the patio after the mixture dries thoroughly.

Q—How can you determine the pitch of a roof?

A—Using a level and square, place the square's short leg on the roof, as shown in the sketch, with one end of the level set at the 12-inch mark of the square. Raise the other end of the level along the long blade of the square until the bubble is centered. Now read the inches at the juncture of the underside of the level and the square. This gives the pitch—the number of inches of rise in each horizontal foot of the roof.

Q—What is the proper way to use a paint brush and to take care of it?

A—Never force a brush into corners or narrow spaces (fig. 1), never use a brush edgewise (2) and never dip the entire bristle length into paint (3). The wrong way to paint a length of pipe or similar round

Q—What is meant by "furring?"

A—To provide a nailing surface for vertical paneling, it usually is necessary to affix strips of lumber to the wall. These are called "furring" strips. In using wood paneling horizontally in an ordinary room, such strips are not needed, however, because the paneling can be nailed directly onto the wall studs.

Q—What's the best way to sand wood paneling?

A—Use a coarse sandpaper at first if necessary to iron out the "dressing skips" which occasionally occur in paneling. Then rub carefully with a very fine grade of sandpaper. Always sand with the grain when hand sanding or when using a belt sander. A vibrator-type sander can be used freely.

Q—How does insulation save heating fuel?

A—By blocking the escape of heat through walls and ceilings. Mineral wool insulation, for example, is composed of mineral fibers surrounding millions of dead air spaces. Heat does not readily pass through this dead air and therefore does not escape to the outside.

Q—Are flat-roofed houses hotter in summer?

A—Generally, yes. A house with a pitched roof has an attic or an air space above the living quarters. Air passing through louvers in the gabled ends of the roof ventilates this space, and much of the heat from the sun on the roof is carried away. Heat also can be reflected away from the roof by light-color shingles or other light-color roofing material.

Q—How can I repair large cracks in a plaster ceiling?

A—It's not practical to attempt to fill the cracks because the new plaster will need more support. As shown in the sketch, remove the plaster on each side of the crack to a distance of about 6 inches. Then place a strip of metal lath in the clearing, nail it to the old lath, and fill the opening with new plaster. Do this in thin layers, permitting each layer to dry slightly before adding the next one.

Q—How high should the working surface of a home desk be?

A—The standard desk height is 30 inches. For a desk for a growing child, however, either pick a design with a working surface that can be adjusted up or down, or use an adjustable chair or stool.

Q—In coloring pine paneling, how can you tell in advance how the finished job will look?

A—Test your finish first on a piece of waste lumber. Keep in mind two principles as you experiment to find the effect that pleases you most—(1) the broad expanse of finished wall will always appear slightly darker than the same finish on a small sample, and (2) paneling will darken some with time. In other words, keep your test sample a bit on the light side of what you really want.

Q—How long does it take shellac to dry on a floor?

A—The first coat, which should be generously thinned with alcohol, generally is dry enough to walk on in about one hour. No less than three hours should elapse, however, between the first and second coats—and an overnight drying period is recommended before the third coat is applied. Shellac should never be used full strength. It should always be thinned with alcohol.

Q—The space in the rear of our kitchen base cabinets is awkward to reach and most of the time is wasted. Is there any way to put this space to use?

A—One method is shown by the sketch. A carpenter made a "pull-up" shelf unit which sits flush with the cabinet top when not in use. Such units can be made in any size. They can be lifted easily.

Q—How can I lighten yellow-stained piano keys?

A—Mix a paste of alcohol and powdered chalk. Rub the paste on the keys, then remove it with a clean, soft cloth.

Q—Is there an inexpensive way to make a mortar box?

A—You can make a practical mortar box by cutting an ordinary oil drum in two, as shown in the sketch. The sloping sides make mixing and cleaning easy—and the sides may be pounded safely to break old mortar loose.

Q—How can plastic tile be cut to fit around fixtures?

A—A coping saw works the best for intricate cuts in plastic tile.

Q—How can oil stains be removed from a concrete driveway?

A—Scrape off any oil crust scrub the spot with gasoline and which has accumulated. Then again later with warm, soapy water. Finally, rinse the driveway with clear water. If the stain has soaked into the concrete, wash with a 10 per cent muriatic acid solution, or with a strong solution of washing soda.

Vinyl Wall Covering May Do Trick

SO YOU'RE tired of looking at that gloomy wall—and you're looking for a simple way to re-decorate it? Vinyl wall covering may be what you're looking for. A damp cloth will clean it and, because the color is in the plastic itself, it's permanent and can't fade or rub off.

Manufacturers now are making special patterns and colors specifically designed for wall applications. The material weighs less, too, and it comes in a lightweight fabric backing, almost like cheesecloth, which is easier to hang.

Also on the market are a special sealer and adhesive, designed just for vinyl-coated fabrics. It is brushed on—but never rolled on—to keep paint colors and varnish from bleeding through the vinyl, and it can save hours of paint scraping and varnish removing in renovating or redecorating jobs.

Check Surface First

Vinyl wall covering is applied in much the same manner as wallpaper but it has the advantage of resisting the tearing and bubbling that frustrate many a do-it-yourself home owner. Vinyl can be applied to virtually any surface as long as the surface is clean, dry, smooth and structurally sound.

Vinyl fabric, incidentally, comes in the 54-inch fabric width instead of the conventional wallpaper width and can be bought by the running yard. Each yard will cover about 13½ square feet of wall.

Here's a step-by-step method for covering a wall with vinyl fabric developed by B. F. Goodrich Co. experts:

Sand finish plaster should be scraped smooth, and cinder or cement blocks should be plastered or cemented smooth. Such walls also may be covered with sheetrock, plasterboard, wood, plaster or composition board, all of which form an excellent base for vinyl wall covering.

In hanging this covering, make sure the first strip is perfectly straight. The best place to start usually is at a door, but even in new houses doors are not always plumb.

Chalked Plumb Line Helps

So slightly less than the width of one strip from the door, drive a small nail near the ceiling; from this nail, drop a chalked plumb line and snap it for your guide.

This may seem like an overly cautious step, but a fraction of an inch out of line on the first strip multiplies as you go around the room—so that your last strip, in case of an error at the start, will be out of line by several noticeable inches.

Now, measure the height of your wall. Cut the strips a few inches longer than the actual height so you'll have some room for trimming the top and bottom. If you use the overlap-and-trim method of hanging (and it's recommended) it will not be necessary to pre-trim the edges of the material.

Using a stiff brush, spread the adhesive on the back of the material. You can spread the adhesive rapidly without fear of tearing the material.

Work From Top Down

Work from the top in applying the strip to the wall. Use a stiff brush, a broad knife or a squeegee to remove wrinkles and airpockets, working down from the top and from the center to the sides.

Overlap the seams by at least two inches. Then, using a straight-edge and sharp blade, cut through both layers of the covering. Peel away the strips and you'll have a perfectly-mated butt seam. With this method, chances are you will not need to use a roller on the seams.

Now trim the top and the bottom with a sharp blade, always using a straight-edge for professional results. Remove the excess adhesive with a clean, damp cloth immediately after finishing each seam.

Now that graduation time is past, those fellows with AB degrees will start learning the rest of the alphabet.

Pocketbook Solution To Home

MOST FAMILIES, faced with the decision to buy a new house or build one, find the solution in their own pocketbooks.

Here are some major advantages that may sometimes be found in buying a new, ready-built home, as compared with building a specially-designed home.

1. Overall financial savings. Development builders and small contractors buy materials in large quantities at lower costs. They buy land in large chunks. Their labor costs often are lower.

2. Less cash outlay and lower interest rates. Development buyers and some small contractors have financing setups which can result in lower down payments.

3. Land development and utilities. New homes built for sale almost invariably are on developed land—with paved streets, sidewalks, sewers, water lines and utilities.

4. Landscaping. Most large builders and some small ones include grading, landscaping and driveways in the house price.

5. Quality materials. Reputable builders choose good materials which are installed with less trouble.

6. "Luxury bonuses." Builders often add sales features such as expensive wall paneling, basement game rooms and even small swimming pools.

Most building authorities agree, however, that one of the biggest mistakes home buyers can make is to spend their housing dollars for luxuries and fail to get good basic design and construction.

How can you avoid this trap? Here are some questions to ask yourself—and the builder, if necessary—as you go through model houses:

How many are in my family, how much room do we need?

Will the house be comfortable in hot and cold weather?

Are electrical outlets where you need them? Is there enough current in the house?

Finally, do you know and approve of the builder's reputation?

There will be a bake sale after the Sunday Masses Sunday, sponsored by the Altar and Rosary Society of St. Mary of the Mount church.

Put Landscaping Needs First

OLD TREES, carefully preserved, provide cool shade for the outside setting (above) which combines ease of upkeep with convenience.

LANDSCAPING is a custom job which takes into consideration the needs—and pocketbooks—of each individual family.

Obviously a family with several growing children will find it impractical to specialize in a velvet-smooth, weed-free lawn. A hillside house will have problems never encountered with a house on level ground. This family of adults will go in for flower gardening; that family of adults, to whom groundskeeping is a chore and not a hobby will want to keep outside work to a minimum.

Start Modestly

Unfortunately, few men and women buying their first house really know just how much outside work they want. Much better to start modestly with a carefully prepared lawn, basic tree and shrub plantings and a minimum of flower and vegetable gardens. It is easy enough to add.

Ideally, a landscaping plan should be developed as carefully as house-building plans. More often alas, landscaping in the broad sense turns out to be something added after the house is finished.

Make a Plan on Paper

The first move of the home owner is to make a plan—on paper. Every family will have a different answer for each family has its own particular needs.

If there is need for privacy, there should be a screen. This can be a closely-woven fence, a hedge of evergreens or a long planting of shrubs.

If the family enjoys outdoor living in season, provisions should be made for a sunny patio, a shady spot out of summer heat, and an outdoor grill for family fun.

Gardeners will want to mark out their future flower beds, taking into consideration the amount of sun which will reach it in growing season.

Everybody with grounds has to consider grass. And, no matter what you've been told, grass is a plant which appreciates good soil, adequate drainage and food as much as a prize dahlia. A thin covering of top soil over a heavy clay soil, rocks and building debris will never support a healthy lawn. It is real economy to spend time and money in the first instance to provide a proper growing medium.

If the job is too much for the home handyman, get help. Also read books on the subject. Have your soil tested. And make certain that there is grading and drainage.

After that, planting may come. The average family will find trees and shrubs costly. It is a better investment to spread out the purchases over a period of time than to try to do the whole job at once. This is not only easier on the budget, but ideas and tastes change from year to year.

Two warnings:

Everybody knows that little trees grow into big trees and that little shrubs grow into big shrubs. For some reason few gardeners can't seem to realize this when they are busily digging holes. The result is that in a few years the material becomes crowded and tangled and the gardener must start pulling out what he put in at so much expense.

Trees, shrubs and flower beds placed in the middle of grass areas are areas which must be moved around, and usually have their edges trimmed. When planting a yard, think of your job as the man behind the mower and make the grass areas as clean and uncluttered as possible. Besides, single specimen plantings are currently unpopular.

Cheerful Tone

DOOR CHIMES give you any house an up-to-date ring. You can install them in place of an ordinary doorbell merely with a screwdriver.

Mortgage Terms Are Binding

IF A borrower with size 14 feet signs a mortgage in which he agrees to wear size 13½ shoes, the agreement will be as binding as the shoes. George F. Anderson, Chicago legal expert for the National Assn. of Real Estate Boards, says a contract may be unreasonable or silly, but so long as it is not illegal, impossibility of performance is no defense.

Mirrors Make Room Dividers

A BOOKCASE, chest of drawers or other large piece of furniture often can serve as an attractive and useful room divider when a large mirror is fitted over the usually unsightly back of such furniture. The new type of plate glass, twin-ground on both surfaces at once, makes the use of large mirrors more practicable by eliminating distortions.

Enclose Porch With Combination Doors For Greatest Enjoyment In All Seasons

PLANNING to build a porch? Then, enclose it with combination storm doors. They're not too expensive and they can make your porch doubly enjoyable. In hot weather, with screen inserts in place, the area becomes a screened-in porch.

In spring and fall, glass inserts turn it into a draft-free sun porch. In the winter, the porch can be used to store bicycles, lawn mowers and other warm-weather articles that clutter up a garage or basement.

And the inserts? Put them in the attic of the porch. They'll be handy to get to if you equip the gable ends with slots covered by removable panels.

The photograph shows how Robert Gallimore, a do-it-yourself home owner, did the job.

Note that shingles overlap the slots three-fourths of an inch at the top. This keeps out rain. A drip cap serves the same purpose at the bottom. The drip cap was formed by panel and then bending it to nailing a strip of light-gauge sheet metal to the inside of the cross the bottom edge of the panel and overlap the shingles below the slot.

The end studs at either side of the slots were only half covered by sheathing and shingles, so that the bare halves form stops for the panels. The panels, themselves, are held in place by small sliding bolts. The shingles on the panels are the top halves of the shingles immediately below the slots. With the panels painted, bolts and all, it's hard to tell that they are there.

Q—How can rug corners be kept from curling up?

A—The glue sizing on the bottom of the rug probably has worn off and needs to be replaced. To renew the sizing, stretch the rug upside down on the floor and spray it with a solution of half a pound of chip glue in two quarts of water. Then let the rug dry for about a day before using it again.

Q—Is there a remedy for chalking plaster walls? We can't get the wallpaper to stick.

A—Coat the wall with a half and half mixture of shellac and alcohol. This will seal the plaster with a waterproof surface, and the wallpaper then will stay in place.

Q—Our basement floor has a constant coat of gray dust no matter how much we sweep. What can we do about it?

A—The dusting can be stopped with a mixture of three pounds of zinc sulphate and one gallon of water. Mop the solution on the floor and let it dry for a few days.

Colorful New Roofing Made For Modern Homes

IF YOU own a modern house with a nearly flat roof you have an opportunity when it comes time to reroof.

A recently developed roofing application method now permits the use of colorful shingles on low-slope roof decks. It is suitable for new construction as well as for new roofs on old houses.

The method makes possible the use of three-tab, square-butt asphalt strip shingles on roofs with slopes as low as two inches per foot. Previously, a four-inch-per-foot pitch was the lowest for which asphalt shingles were recommended.

Unlike the materials that had to be used for low-slope roofing before, asphalt shingles offer a wide selection of solid and blended colors, ranging from subtle pastels through deeper shades of green, blue, and red to blue-black and black.

The light colors are often chosen for one-story houses because a light roof tends to make a low house look larger. Asphalt shingles usually can be applied directly over old roofing, saving the expense of removing the old material.

Low-slope application calls for two layers of asphalt-saturated felt to be laid on the roof deck before the shingles are applied. These two layers are cemented together along the eaves, in areas where the temperature averages below 25 degrees in January. As a final step, each shingle tab is cemented to the one beneath it.

Even Warm Room Can Be Chilly If Walls Get Cold

EVER HAVE the puzzling experience of feeling chilly in a room you knew was warm? You weren't imagining things.

Heating experts say cold walls are one of the biggest barriers to winter comfort, even when the room temperature is up around 80.

The walls cause the body to lose heat so quickly that person begins to shiver.

Insulation is a remedy. A wall adequately insulated will be up to 10 degrees warmer than without insulation.

There are two main ways insulation keeps walls from robbing the body of its heat. The first is the prevention of drafts. When a wall is cold, it refrigerates the air near it. Cold air is heavier than warm air and so it sinks, sending drafts of chilly air along the floor. The cold walls keep sending new supplies of cold air, which keep the drafts going.

With insulated walls, no discernible amount of cold air comes off the walls and objectionable drafts disappear.

Warm walls also reduce body heat loss through radiation. Did you ever sit before a roaring fire and feel warm even though the air in the room was cold? What happened was that the warmth of the fire was radiated to your body in the form of heat waves. You were warmed even though the air around you was not.

When the walls are cold, the warmth of your body escapes to the walls by the same heat waves. The colder the walls, the faster the heat loss. When the walls are warm, the radiation, for all practical purposes, is stopped.

Questions, Ans. For Handyman

Q—I want to refinish an old wooden cabinet but sanding doesn't remove the old stain. What should I do?

A—A commercial wood bleach or oxalic acid can be applied. To complete the preparation for the new stain, give the wood a fine sanding.

Q—When incense cedar is used to line a clothes closet, how should the wood be finished?

A—Leave the incense cedar unfinished in clothes closets to allow its natural fragrance to escape into the room. When the strength of the cedar odor has diminished with time, a light sanding of the surface of the cedar paneling will restore it.

Sturdy, Custom-Sized Furniture Easily Constructed For Children At Little Cost

STURDY, custom-sized tables and chairs for small children can be built by even a novice do-it-yourself. Best of all, the furniture costs little and takes rough handling.

The first thing to determine is how high the chairs should be. About eight inches is the best which are nailed at a slight backward sloping angle to the 2 x 8 sides. Then you nail a 1 x 2 (it'll be about 14 inches long) across the top of these, and another one between the 18-inch pieces and about five inches from the top.

A child's table is equally simple. Most lumber yards have what they call plywood remnants. The 3/4-inch thick plywood is best for tables. You can generally find a small piece—say around 24 inches by 24 inches—quite reasonable. This makes an excellent top.

For legs, use two by four-inch fir. If the chairs were made with the seat about eight inches from the floor, the 2 x 4s should be cut into four pieces of 10-inch length and two pieces which are almost as long as the plywood you will use as the top (in this case, about 20 inches.)

Nail At Each End

Stand two of the 10-inch boards on end, spaced far enough apart so you can nail one of the longer boards to the top of them at each end. A couple of eight or 10-penny common nails will do the trick. Do the same for the others.

Then space the twin leg assemblies about an inch from the edge of the plywood top and nail with finishing nails again. The whole project can be sanded and painted, if you desire.

A small point: the lumber we're talking about actually doesn't measure 2 by 8 inches.

It will be slightly smaller. But it's what the lumber is called. It costs extra to get exactly a 2 x 8 board.

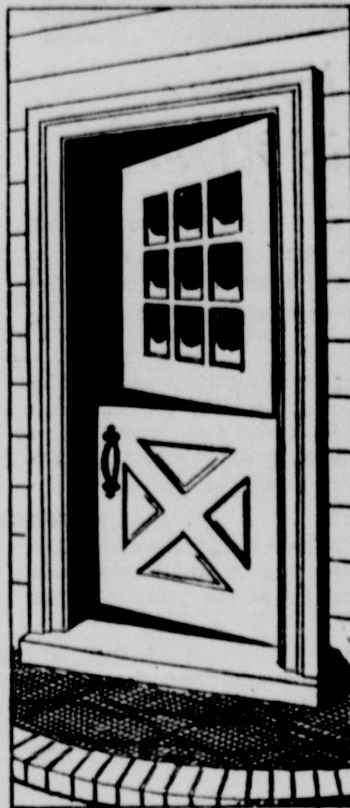

You also can save money in most cases if you can figure ways to use boards less than 8-feet long. House builders need them at least that long, and lumber yard men frequently offer bargains in the shorter lengths.

Questions, Ans. For Handyman

Q—Can a "dutch" door be made at home?

A—The sketch shows an exterior "dutch" door made from a stock door of ponderosa pine, available at building material dealers. Carefully measure the opening and buy the right size door. At home, cut it in half and hang it on two sets of hinges. You'll also need two latches. Interior "dutch" doors also can be made at home. They're handy between a kitchen and dining room, and for a child's room.

Q—The outside walls of my house have become mildewed. How can I remedy this condition?

A—A milk alkaline solution such as trisodium phosphate or washing soda will probably remove the mildew. Depending on the amount of mildew, you may need to repeat the operation several times before painting the house, if the condition is severe. When you do repaint, be sure to include a mildewcide in the paint.

Make Check First Before Remodeling

REMODELING may be the answer for families who can't or don't want to buy or build a brand-new dream house. With luck, a lot of searching and careful planning, it's possible to get the bargain of a lifetime.

The first step on such a project is to determine the condition of the house and the extent of remodeling needed. A ramshackle home's lack of beauty may be only skin deep.

Get Expert Advice

If the basic structure is sound, and if the room layout is such that a minimum of structural changes are needed, prospects may be good.

But before going ahead, get expert advice from an architect, a contractor or a lending institution. Obtain estimates on all work. Perhaps you can do some yourself. Then find out if you can finance the work.

For extensive remodeling, be prepared to spend several thousand dollars. A. B. Campen, remodeling editor of Practical Builder, found that on more than 100 houses, the average remodeling cost was about $8,000. In every case, Campen said, the owner saved money. Campen found these 10 major remodeling needs:

1. All of the houses needed better wiring for modern electrical appliances.
2. All needed new kitchens. Today's housewife, unable to find or afford domestic help, wants such appliances as a dishwasher, garbage disposal unit, clothes washer and dryer, large refrigerator and deep freezer—and ample work surfaces and cabinet space.
3. All needed more storage space. In any remodeling job, try to include a storage wall.
4. All needed painting and decorating.
5. Nine out of 10 of the houses needed new roofs.
6. Full Insulation Required. Seven out of 10 houses needed heating systems. A new heating unit is a major expense but not prohibitive.
7. Eight out of 10 houses needed complete insulation. Thirty years ago, home insulation was virtually unknown. A fully insulated house means at least a four to six-inch thickness of mineral wool in the ceilings, at least three inches in the walls and two inches over a crawl space.
8. Seven out of 10 houses needed new bathrooms. Most families need at least one upstairs and a lavatory downstairs.
9. Seven out of 10 houses needed new windows.
10. Five out of 10 houses needed new siding. Narrow, 3½-inch clapboard dates a house.

Do-It-Yourself Mirrors Provide Dramatic Effect

A GOOD SOLUTION for a dead wall in your house is a full size mirror, but when you learn the price, you may decide to leave it blank. However, you can get the same effect as a full mirror by using inexpensive small mirrors and putting them together behind a moulding.

Actually, the effect can be even more dramatic sometimes by painting the moulding to match or contrast with something in the room. If you want to use imagination and vary the sizes of the small mirrors, you can attain another striking effect. An example of what can be done is an 18-section mirror above a 9-foot-long fireplace, shown in the photograph.

To use a one or even three-piece mirror would have sent the family budget in retreat. However, by using 18 small mirrors, a decorative effect was achieved at a fraction of the price of larger mirrors.

Use Brads

First, decide what area you want mirrored, and the size of the mirrors. Next, cut strips of wood three-eighths of an inch wide and an eighth of an inch thick. Nail these to the wall with small brads so you can slip the mirrors into them in the pattern you want.

It is safe to nail these light strips into a plaster wall but they will not hold on sheet rock. To overcome this, you can start by nailing a piece of quarter-inch plywood to the studs behind the wall, then brad the strips on this.

Because the double strength mirrors are so light, the strips don't have to carry much weight. Now, you'll have to have strips three-quarters of an inch wide and an eighth of an inch thick. One surface of this should be smooth because it will be the outside facing.

Now, with your strips up, place each piece of mirror into its hole and center the moulding over the strips to hold it in place. Use a small level to make sure everything is plumb. Also, it's easier to run long strips of moulding either horizontal or vertical; then after you have all the mirrors up, finish by placing the rest of the moulding between the long sections.

One Arm No Deterrent

CONVINCED you're not handy with tools? Then just try to imagine doing carpentry with one hand.

Earl Heider of New Orleans works that way, as a professional. He's had to get along with a left arm only since the age of four when an accidental shotgun discharge blew his right arm off at the shoulder.

About four years ago he began woodworking with the help of his father, a retired dredge-boat operator. But when he started to seek carpentry jobs, it was tough.

"Do you think you can do it?" people would ask.

Heider talked a good job—and then went ahead and did it. He thinks his handicap really is an advertisement.

On the job, he uses his feet as well as his hand and head. To drive a nail, he holds it with his one hand against the hammer shank to get it started, while holding the wood in place with his right foot.

Besides carpentry, he solders tin, paints signs, does concrete work, drafting and furniture repairing. Liking to hunt and fish, he has built 40 pirogues for his own use, only to sell them on request as fast as he finishes them.

WHO BUYS HOMES?

THE AVERAGE age of home buyers, says the Federal Housing Administration, is between 34 and 36. Typical of the new home buyer is the man 34½ years old. The typical buyer of an older house is slightly more than 36 years old.

Glass Important To New Swedish Dwellings

By Tom Reedy

STOCKHOLM (AP)—In Sweden they say that people who live in glass houses should. Net result is that today most new construction of not only homes but public buildings abounds in glass. Sweden's 53 glass factories have nothing against it.

Behind this trend in construction lies the unpleasant fact that one never sees the sun in Sweden from mid-September until March. Sometimes you wait until April. In September of 1957, meteorologists logged precisely five hours of sunshine in 30 days.

Architects, engineers and the chances are some medical advisers got to figuring that if one has so little daylight, he had better let some of it in. Ergo, the passion for glass.

A Recent Trend

The move toward glass houses started only about seven years ago. A decorator, Bruno Mathsson, who designed the first ultra-modern homes here, is generally given credit for pushing the idea.

He has built two all-glass factories, several schools and about 15 homes and says:

"I've still got glass on the brain."

What amazes most observers about the new, stylized construction is that the Swedes insist on such departures even while they are struggling with the elemental problem of finding enough living space for 7,000,000 Swedes.

Five per cent of the population in Stockholm simply cannot find an apartment.

While the tolerant, patient Swedes sweat out construction that will give the public enough breathing space, they manage at the same time to pay considerable attention to what some folks call frills.

Bedrooms Are Small

The living room and dining room are now big and glass-enclosed. Bedrooms are small, the theory being that one sleeps anyway.

Baths and showers abound, and gardens where possible.

If a Swede does not possess a garden, he spends his whole summer in a tiny shack somewhere which he calls a "stuga," without any conveniences at all, just to get some fun and air and perhaps tend a vegetable patch or two.

The one single problem which faces everyone in Sweden is the cost of such construction. What one could erect in the United States for $20,000 costs double that here. Workmen simply will not do a job at night and so things go along steadily but surely in the daytime hours at extremely high wage scales.

Nonetheless, the Swedes are putting up thousands of homes all the time, blasting like mad at the granite which pervades the nation and which compelled Alfred Nobel to invent dynamite in order to conquer it.

But when those few rays of sun finally break through and hit this kind of housing and its surroundings, it becomes a cover picture.

Bigger Chests For Medicine

THE AVERAGE bathroom medicine cabinet has shrunk considerably in size in the past 15 years. One survey found medicine cabinets of the early 1940s averaging 14 by 19 inches, 5 inches deep. Today they average 13 by 17 by 4 inches deep. Many new home owners complain about the lack of space and frequently have two medicine cabinets installed in each bathroom.

How To Paint Cinder Blocks

CINDER blocks are so porous that it is better to give them a coat of cement, stucco or portland cement paint before painting them with a permanent finish. If you paint cinder blocks with out cementing the surface, they will absorb a lot of paint and holes will still show. Outdoor type, rubber-based masonry paint is best for the outer surfaces.

Ravine Can Be Ideal Home Site

By George W. Wilbur

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—If your search for the ideal site on which to build your dream house has been stalled by rising land costs, the solution to your problem may be found in one of those seemingly undesirable properties that have a habit of being ignored.

This is not to suggest that frontage along the city dump would offer hidden possibilities as a building site. But there are many beautiful homes on land that once appeared impractical for building purposes.

Some years ago Frank Lloyd Wright faced the challenge of designing a house suitable to a site consisting of a high rocky ledge split by a series of waterfalls. To anyone but an imaginative architect like Wright, the site might have been brushed off as "impossible."

Wright's solution to the problem became one of the most famous homes in America, "Falling Water," at Bear Run, Pa., a classic of contemporary design.

In virtually every community across the country there are available properties that pass the test of desirability from the standpoint of nearness to paved roads, schools and shopping centers, availability of water, electricity and sewerage, and yet go begging on the market.

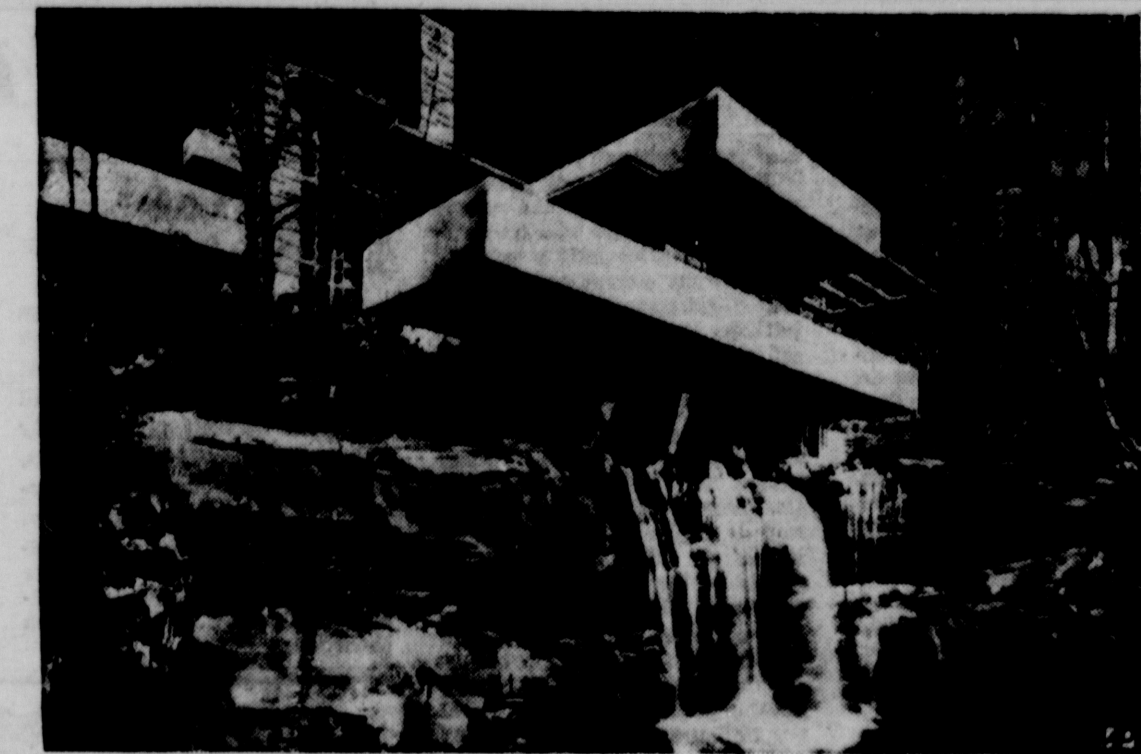

The reason is usually terrain. These properties fail to attract the average buyer, who has preconceived ideas of a geometrically squared-off lot, gently sloping with a poetic sprinkling of shade trees.

Flexibility Needed

Too frequently when a prospective land owner finds this vision at odds with his pocketbook, he either settles for a much smaller piece of real estate, a location in a less desirable neighborhood, or an unhappy combination of both. Greater flexibility in judging what constitutes a favorable building site can often spare this end.

This was discovered recently by a man, just getting his feet wet in his profession but wanting to build "once and for all" in a location that would be in keeping with the income and social position he hoped to acquire in future years.

After a fruitless summer of tracking down real estate advertisements in well-to-do suburbia, this man and his wife were about to throw in the towels when they spotted a rusted "for sale" sign almost hidden by underbrush.

The property seemed to offer nothing as a building site, being only 60 feet at its greatest depth and narrowing to a point some 500 feet away. Heavily wooded with numerous rocky outcrops, it was mostly a deep ravine with a small stream running its length.

On the credit side, it fronted a hard-surfaced street while the rear boundary ran adjacent to the fairway of the city's most exclusive country club. Stores, schools, churches, a bus stop and even a small lake were nearby and the neighborhood was undeniably upper-bracket.

After gaining encouragement from an architect and an imaginative nurseryman, the couple bought the property for a fraction of what other home sites in the area were commanding and were able to pay from the savings the architect's fee for designing a contemporary home strikingly wedded to the site.

Architecture Advances

The key to utilizing an unusual life is to discard the notion that beauty attends only those homes rooted squarely in the middle of a smooth carpet of grass. It also can be present in a more relaxed, natural fashion, where the site possesses unique characteristics of its own and the house is designed to complement, rather than offend them.

Architecture has made great strides in recent years—promoting wider possibilities for achieving harmony between structure and site. With greater use of post and beam, cantilever and reinforced concrete construction, plus a host of new building materials, terrain problems have diminished.

While use of a difficult site is more easily attained through contemporary architecture because of its greater flexibility, it is not limited to any particular home design. With certain changes to adapt it to a specific site, styles from Tudor to Cape Cod usually are possible.

Unless you feel qualified, don't trust your judgment alone as to what will make a good building site. Some properties possess truly insurmountable problems, or at least those prohibitively expensive to overcome.

Back your own assessment of a particular piece of land with sound technical advice, which is usually available at a nominal cost. For this, turn to an architect, a good building contractor, a nurseryman or landscape architect.

Why Make Own Wood Fillers?

DUST clogged air filters tend to impede the flow of air through heating or air conditioning units. This makes such units operate at higher temperatures than thermostat settings. This in turn boosts operating costs and cuts comfort performance.

There are two general types of filter units. One made of oiled glass fibers compares in cost with a carton of cigarettes and is thrown away and replaced. Another, made of oiled metal filings can be cleaned, re-oiled and used indefinitely.

Economical Material

POLYETHYLENE plastic film—the material that many fresh vegetables are wrapped in—is claimed to be the least expensive efficient moisture barrier on the market today. Enough polyethylene to seal the ground area in a crawl space under a house of 1,100 square feet would cost a little more than $15.

Inspect Stucco Before Painting

BEFORE painting stucco, examine it carefully for any loose particles which should be removed to insure a firm paint base. The stucco should be bonded tightly to its base. Pry into any break with a putty knife to see if patching is needed. A good, long wearing house paint is suitable for older stucco houses, but the newer rubber base masonry paint is formulated to give longer lasting results.

THIS CAREFULLY DESIGNED retirement house balance of features intended to make life pleasant. New York Architect Samuel Paul has an abundance for older couples.

Retirement Dwellings Need Select Designs

By Joy Miller

Newsfeatures Writer

A LITTLE dream house in Florida after retirement . . . That's the goal of many a couple approaching 65.

Others would rather spend their later years among the friends and neighbors they grew up with. For them, familiarity means security.

The place, then, is a highly individual matter. But the house itself—to make retirement as happy as it should be—ought to meet specific requirements.

These requirements grew out of study by architects and government housing officials. After facing the incontrovertible fact that more and more people are living longer and longer, these experts explored the whole housing problem of senior citizens.

And they recommend, if your retirement is just around the corner, that you take a long, sensible look at your housing needs.

Do you own your own home? (More than two-thirds do by the time they reach 65.) Then decide if it's suitable for the coming years.

Only Two Choices

Often, after children grow up and leave home, a house simply becomes too big for the parents. They rattle around in it, can't take care of it properly, perhaps injure themselves on stairs made for more agile feet.

This isn't for you. The choice is: move or remodel.

A modern, one-floor ranch type house, for example, can be adapted easily. Installation of non-slip flooring and grab bars likely will take care of it. But in an old two-story house, with one bath on the second floor, conversion would mean an extensive outlay of money.

Whatever you decide to do, be sure to check the home of your retirement years for safety, comfort, and ease of maintenance.

E. Everett Ashley III, director of the statistical reports and development branch of the housing and home finance agency, says the following are musts for any retirement house:

1. Complete dwelling facilities, including a bathroom, on one floor. That floor should be reached by few, if any, steps.
2. No thresholds or other tripping hazards.
3. Non-slip surfaces in hallways, bathrooms and kitchens.
4. Handrails by all steps and inclines.
5. Adequate handgrips by all bathtubs and toilets.
6. Adequate lighting for all steps and other potentially hazardous areas.
7. Fully automatic central heating, where central heating is required.

Wide Halls Suggested

Ashley also recommends easily operated and cleaned windows, doors and hallways wide enough for a wheelchair to move through and a bathroom large enough and suitably designed for use by a wheelchair patient.

In addition to the physical layout of the house, the location is important, Ashley suggests you ask these questions:

1. Is it near public transportation and everyday shopping facilities?
2. Is it away from major traffic hazards?
3. Is it close to your old friends and associates?
4. Are there facilities for passive recreation and entertainment nearby?
5. Is the neighborhood free from evidence of serious blight or decay?

How to finance it? Ashley says the Federal Housing Administration stands ready to assist, whether it is in altering a house, trading one in for another better suited to old age needs, or outright buying.

Special provisions written into the Housing Act of 1956 remove the major obstacles previously in the way of older people trying to buy homes.

Friends or relatives or even a corporation can make the down payment.

An Illusion of Light

Some architects have become specialists in the field, blending practical considerations with smart psychology.

For example, Samuel Paul, Jamaica, N. Y., keeps his retirement house—at 4½ rooms plus screened porch and carport—small enough for easy care. Yet he makes a point of an illusion of light, airy spaciousness. "It helps avoid emotional conflicts," he says.

He includes safety devices, pushbutton equipment, and save-your-heart features, such as putting electric base outlets 24 inches off the floor to minimize bending.

Without such special gadgets as the pushbutton lawn sprinkler system, the house runs about $6,500.

Lock Your Windows

WEATHERSTRIPPING around windows is most efficient when windows are firmly locked. The Weatherstrip Research Institute says locked windows not only deter prowlers, but also keep dust, dirt and street noises out.

Wash Stand Back In Bedroom

AN OLD-FASHIONED convenience—a wash basin in a bedroom—is back again in many new homes. It is now called a vanity lavatory, or vanity. Sparked by the popularity of countertops around kitchen sinks, the lavatory built into a dressing table relieves pressure on high-cost bath, too.

Degrees For Plumbers

PLUMBERS usually go through long training as apprentices, journeymen and finally master plumbers. But college degrees are now given in plumbing science.

Wider Use Of Natural Light Adds Nature's Richness To Rooms In Modern U. S. Homes

AMERICANS are opening their homes to nature—not just to the greenery of planters and other foliage, but to natural light. Gay and friendly, natural light is being brought in through windows, glass walls and even through ceilings.

In Sweden, where the sun is in hiding for at least half of each year, glass has become a dominant housing material. Glass has become increasingly important, too, in American homes—but for a different reason.

As one architect explains it, Americans are "looking more and more to a method of living compatibly with nature, and as near these natural elements as possible. The development of glass and plastic materials which can be used in large expanses has aided the integration of the inside and outside of our homes."

Sky Becomes Visible

The architect, Wyatt C. Hedrick of Fort Worth, Tex., where there is no poverty of sunlight, continues:

"This not only brings us a close relationship with the ground level elements, such as planting and greenery, but also enables us to look at the sky—both through vertical glass in front of us as well as horizontal glass above."

"The first use of glass in the home stemmed from a desire to live with nature at the ground level. This was accomplished by full vertical glass surfaces, used as separation between inside and out. By judicious use of inside planting, a close psychological tie-in to outside surroundings was accomplished."

"The architect and the public now realize the psychological advantages of using clear glass or plastic on horizontal roof surfaces. This completes the tie-in to nature, gives a shield against the elements, and allows us to enjoy the beauties nature has set before us."

New Life and Richness

Hedrick, noted in the southwest for striking architectural designs, frequently emphasizes the use of transparent materials throughout the entire house, giving—as he says—"new life and richness to all rooms in the home."

He has achieved this in several ways:

By using full glass walls instead of conventional windows; by the use of skylights; by cutting holes in the roof overhang above windows which must be small because of interior conditions; by running strips of glass down the center of large homes to give the interior living zones a balanced natural light, and by many other methods applicable to individual homes.

A number of these methods were used in a home recently designed by Hedrick. The architect explains how he used them:

"This particular home began as a plan problem because the owners wanted a room surrounding a large, central enclosed court. This room was to be used as the center of all family activities. Due to the immense size of the room, I felt it would be more appropriate to give the feeling of an actual courtyard, open to the sky."

Bamboo Curtains Cut Sun

"This was accomplished by using a glass skylight covering fully one-half of the entire ceiling. The skylight was equipped with bamboo curtains for cutting the direct sun. A profusion of tropical plants was used, along with garden-type furniture."

"One can hardly distinguish where the outside ends and the inside begins. The room is actually enclosed, is air-conditioned and heated. All of the surrounding rooms thus open directly on to the courtyard and give complete freedom of flow throughout the house."

Plastic Skylights Added

Another recent Hedrick design provided a completely glassed-in foyer with a glass mosaic-lined fish pond and an abundance of tropical planting. Supplementing the natural light coming through the glass walls in this house, several plastic skylights were added to give a rich, natural lighting effect.

"Even in Texas," Hedrick adds, "where extreme changes in temperature are a common daily occurrence, we have found that we have not had to use shading screens over our most expansive skylight installations. In most of the homes where we have used skylights, however, we have installed some type of shading device, which is used not for cutting out the glare, but is drawn only during the hottest parts of the day to cut the load on the air conditioning system."

Summing up his enthusiasm for using natural light in homes, Hedrick says:

"As architects, we can only say that man cannot match the beauty of nature, but is only able to control and discipline nature to provide more pleasant living conditions for his fellow human beings. I feel that one method of accomplishing this is to take full advantage of a light source nature has provided."

Risky To Build Without Survey

MORE than once a house has been built on the wrong lot. Houses often are built closer to land boundaries than the law allows. Trouble results. An Atlanta, Ga., lawyer tells of a man who bought lots on a curving street where lots were 70 feet wide and 350 feet deep. After his house was finished, he found he had used the front corners of his own lot but the rear corners of the next door lot. He was forced to buy the adjoining land.

Keep Windows Tight

IT'S WISE never to run radio or television antenna lead-ins over window weatherstripping. Notch the weatherstrip if you must bring wires in through a window. A tight window fit is the purpose of weatherstripping.

Chemical Stops Water From Freezing

THE ADDITION of calcium chloride to water in fire buckets can prevent freezing at 59 degrees below zero. Such a solution resists evaporation and prevents stagnation with its attendant breeding of mosquitoes. One pound of calcium chloride to one gallon of water lowers the freezing point from 32 to 24 degrees. Three pounds brings it down to 2 below zero. Five pounds per gallon defies freezing at 52 below zero. Always add the flakes to the water—never pour the water on the flakes. Mixing causes heat, so prepare solutions in separate tanks to cool before filling galvanized containers.

Wood Tops List For Decorating

IF YOU want to know what kind of wood to use for certain interior decorating effects, here's how the National Lumber Manufacturers' Assn. classifies natural color tones: Light to medium colors include ponderosa pine, southern pine, Douglas fir, Idaho pine, sugar pine, Englemann spruce, west coast hemlock, Sitka spruce, white ash, birch, black gum, hackberry, hickory, pecan, magnolia, soft maple, hard maple, red oak, white oak and yellow poplar.

For woods running medium to dark in color, use western red cedar, southern cypress, California redwood, larch, brown ash, butternut, cherry, chestnut, red gum, American walnut and mahogany.

Sturdy Roof Of Insurance Over House Saves Trouble

By Cynthia Lowry

AP Newsfeatures Writer

THE PROUD owners of a slightly used house, our first realization that the place was really ours came when, looking dreamily out the living room window, I saw the roofer going by—vertically.

Fortunately, we have a sturdy foundation planting; it is only a short drop from shingles to yews, and the roofer survived with nothing more than severe embarrassment and a slight scratch.

The episode, however, sent me flying to the little tin box in which were nestled the brand new mortgage, a much-fingered roll of blue prints, a certificate for 200 shares in a defunct Canadian gold mine and the insurance policy.

Beset by the confused condition which apparently afflicts every person in the process of acquiring his first house, I had taken a number of things for granted. One was insurance. I know I had a policy and I assumed I was covered for everything from civil insurrection to carpenter ants.

Upon reading the policy, however, I discovered that actually we were merely covered against fire.

Revised Sharply Upward

I was, it turned out, completely on my own if the cleaning woman took a header down the cellar, if the milkman tripped over the hose or if a burglar made off with the brass umbrella stand and the circa 1947 silver plate.

The following day we had a heart-to-heart talk with our insurance broker, establishing what was then a sturdy roof of insurance over our dwelling house, as the insurance folks call it.

That was 10 years ago, remember, and strange things have happened to prices through the intervening years. A few months ago, goaded again into policy-reading after a friend's house had been burglarized, I realized that our insurance coverage was inadequate to match today's costs—and today's jury awards.

Our policies have been revised sharply upwards. We are pretty well protected against almost any disaster except flood.

Adequate insurance gives you peace of mind. Ours costs less than $8 a month, which is little enough when you consider the thousands most of us have invested in our homes.

Only recently we decided to do what the insurance people are always urging and what most of us almost never get around to: taking inventory.

It's easy enough to evaluate such items as a refrigerator, a television set or a fur piece from purchase slips or check books. Harder to translate into terms of dollars were such things as a mahogany table belonging to a great grand-mother which just cost $95 to repair and refinish; nine serving plates from the set Great-Aunt Jennie brought back from the Paris Exposition of 1893; the horror of a rosewood chair with women carved on the arms and a broken spring.

This led us to poking around antique shops. The plates, it turned out, were Sevres, collector's items and worth so much money we've been afraid to use them since.

The rosewood chair, Victorian in its most vulgar, is considered "amusing" at the moment and thus worth more than the table (which would have been more valuable if we hadn't had it repaired).

The result of the inventory, incidentally, was startling. Our odds and ends, once added up, were worth almost three times what we thought they were.

More fascinating, you should see the attic and the cellar these days. You can actually walk around them. They aren't even fire-hazards any more.

Extra Apartment Space

By Howard Benedict

AP Newsfeatures Writer

APARTMENT dwelling has a lot of advantages for a lazy man. No lawn to cut; no real estate taxes to pay; no furnace to feed; no water heater to tend. And if the plumbing goes on the blink, just rap on the superintendent's door.

But there are disadvantages, too—like no lawn to enjoy on a summer evening. And if not decorated properly, small apartments are apt to make the occupants feel like caged lions.

Yet this confined feeling can be overcome with careful planning that can make fewer rooms actually mean more living space.

The key to getting the most out of a small space is to make it act large. To turn this trick, simply use the same space over and over again for many different activities. A living room that is the setting for a small dinner can be transformed into a bedroom. Often the partitions that divide space are movable, so that a room's dimensions can be altered to fit activity.

A studio couch is the most useful piece of furniture in a room also used for entertaining. A card table can double as a dinner table.

Light Effect Created

If you use only one color in a room you can make it look larger. If you use yellow, you can create the effect of sunlight, often shut out of an apartment.

Decorations can be concentrated on the walls, giving a room charm without using up precious floor space. A grouping of good paintings, a mirror, or an unusual wall hanging make a small room look important.

Never have too many little gadgets on table tops. They give an apartment a cluttered look.

By repeating a single fabric, or a single color, you can link a number of small rooms to give the broad effect of spaciousness. This also permits the moving of furniture from one room to another.

A narrow room can be given the illusion of width by using a shoji screen on one of the narrow walls.

A big problem in apartment living is finding storage space. This may be concentrated along one wall, keeping things more convenient to find than in closets scattered over several rooms.

Concealed Storage Space

Radios, television and phonographs can be fitted neatly into compact built-in units, either in a wall or in a double-duty piece of furniture. Storage also may be concealed within the furniture itself. Most studio couches, for example, provide such space.

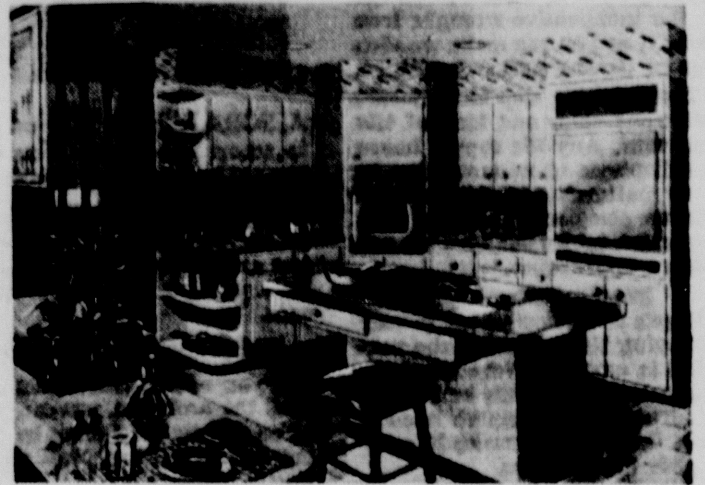

Place your furniture against the wall for more space. Use chairs that are light enough to move from room to room, but which are still comfortable enough to sit on for a long period. Extra seating may be provided by stools that can be tucked away under a table.

Instead of one big coffee table, try two small tables that can be pushed together or separated to serve as end tables or writing desks.

Painting Radiators

CAST IRON radiators are much less conspicuous when painted the same color as the wall between them. Regular wall paint also transmits more heat than gilt or aluminum paints. To figure the amount of surface to be painted, measure the front area and multiply by 7.

IT COSTS NO MORE TO HAVE QUAKER MAID AWARD-WINNING STYLE AND CONSTRUCTION

Ceramic Tile Answer To Problems

By Saul Feldman

DON'T THROW away that old coffee table or end table just because the top is scratched—or just because you don't like the way it looks.

Ceramic tile will make it look like new, and without much effort will give it an expensive, custom finish.

If you don't have a table to refinish, you still can make a tile table by using a piece of ½ inch plywood as a base. Legs can be the inexpensive wrought iron variety, or you can make wooden legs to fit any period furniture.

The first big step is to decide just what color and kind of tile you want. Any tile supply house has displays of ceramic tile in many patterns and shapes. The smaller sizes are probably best for coffee tables and give an expensive appearance.

Money Saving Tip

Here's a hint on saving money on buying tile: although the material is comparatively inexpensive, ask for closeouts or leftovers. The small amount needed for a table should make it easy to pick up leftovers.

Now clean the surface to be tiled of all dust or dirt. A can of white tile mastic should be used to paste down the tile and it can be purchased at any supply house.

A notched trowel is used to spread the mastic evenly across the top of the table. If you buy tile in the smaller sizes, the pieces will come pasted to a sheet of paper. You press the side of the tile not stuck to the paper on the mastic.

After a few minutes, wet the paper and it will easily peel off.

Use Door To Advantage

IF YOU'RE remodeling, or planning to remodel, you may wind up with one doorway too many. But don't wall it up without asking yourself, first, if it would be a good place for built-in bookshelves. If the answer is yes, the problem of what to do with the doorway can be solved with a minimum of effort and expense.

First the door trim is pried off, intact, and set aside. Then the frame is pried out. A new frame, made of white pine, 1 by 12 inches, is set in its place so that the "inside" edges are flush with the wall.

Concealed By False Wall

This will leave the new frame protruding beyond the wall on the other side, but the projection is concealed by a false wall of half-inch plywood. The false wall also will provide a back for the bookshelves.

Such false walls rob adjoining

A SCRATCHED TOP on a coffee table doesn't mean you have to scrap the table. You can give it a custom look like the table above, by covering it with ceramic tile.

The mastic will take time to set so you still have time to adjust any tiles to make sure you have a nice fit at the table's ends.

Elaborate Designs Possible

If you are artistic enough and have the ambition, you can work up elaborate tile designs by placing one tile at a time on the mastic.

Let the tile set for at least 24 hours, and then you're ready to fill the cracks with grout. First, take a damp rag and rub along the cracks to wet the tile. Then mix the grout with water until you form a paste and rub it into the cracks while the tile is still damp. Wipe off the excess before it hardens. Any grout that remains after it hardens can be taken off with a wet rag.

The next step is the trim around your table. Here again, personal preference is the only guide. You can use any type of molding, quarter round, or just plain strips of wood.

After the trim is on, finish grouting between the wood and the edge tile.

You can use the 4x4 inch glazed ceramic tile but they must be placed one at a time. These look especially nice on larger tables. They make an unusual and attractive top also for an entire dining room table. Besides alternating colors, they can be painted with designs and initials.

Measuring Hardwood Flooring

THE NUMBER of feet of hardwood flooring needed for any room is figured by adding certain percentages to the floor area. For the standard 2¼-inch face width, add 33 1/3 per cent; for 1½-inch add 50 per cent; for 2-inch, add 37 ½ per cent. Then in all cases add 3 to 5 per cent for waste in cutting and fitting.

Why Air Filters Must Be Clean

MODERN wood fillers and filler-sealers are so easy to prepare and use that it is no longer worth while to roll your own out of sanding dust and varnish. The old-fashioned practice might not often work out satisfactorily with the wide variety of modern varnishes containing synthetic resins.

"Shall I call Frank Lloyd Wright for a consultation?"

FOR SMALL TRUE CUTS USE SCRAP PIECES ON EACH SIDE

Q—Is there an easy way to make thin cuts when working with wood?

A—The sketch shows how a wood "sandwich" can be set up for thin cuts. If a vise is not available, substitute "C" clamps.

U. S. Women Partial To Large Homes

WHAT KIND of a house would you build as the ideal home for the typical American housewife? It would be larger and more comfortable. It would have seven or eight rooms and 2½ baths.

It would set on a wooden, one-acre lot and most of the land would be left in its natural state, for both aesthetic as well as practical reasons. Yet, it would be near public transportation, schools, parks, and libraries.

It would have an entrance hall, a living room, a family room, a kitchen and three bedrooms. The seventh and eighth rooms would be either a fourth bedroom, a playroom, a study or a dining room. The house could be anything from colonial to modern in style.

The composition of the house was disclosed at the second Women's Congress on Better Living held in Washington last year. The government sponsored the first congress. The second congress was sponsored by a magazine (McCall's).

Area by area, here are the house's major components:

THE ENTRANCE — The entrance should be spotlighted. There should be a glass panel in the front door so callers could be seen before the door is opened.

THE KITCHEN — It should be larger, better equipped and more efficiently designed. The modern kitchen once again is emerging as the center of family living, the women agreed, and is a place for cooking, dining, laundry work and home sewing, for hobbies and homework—and for entertaining and watching television.

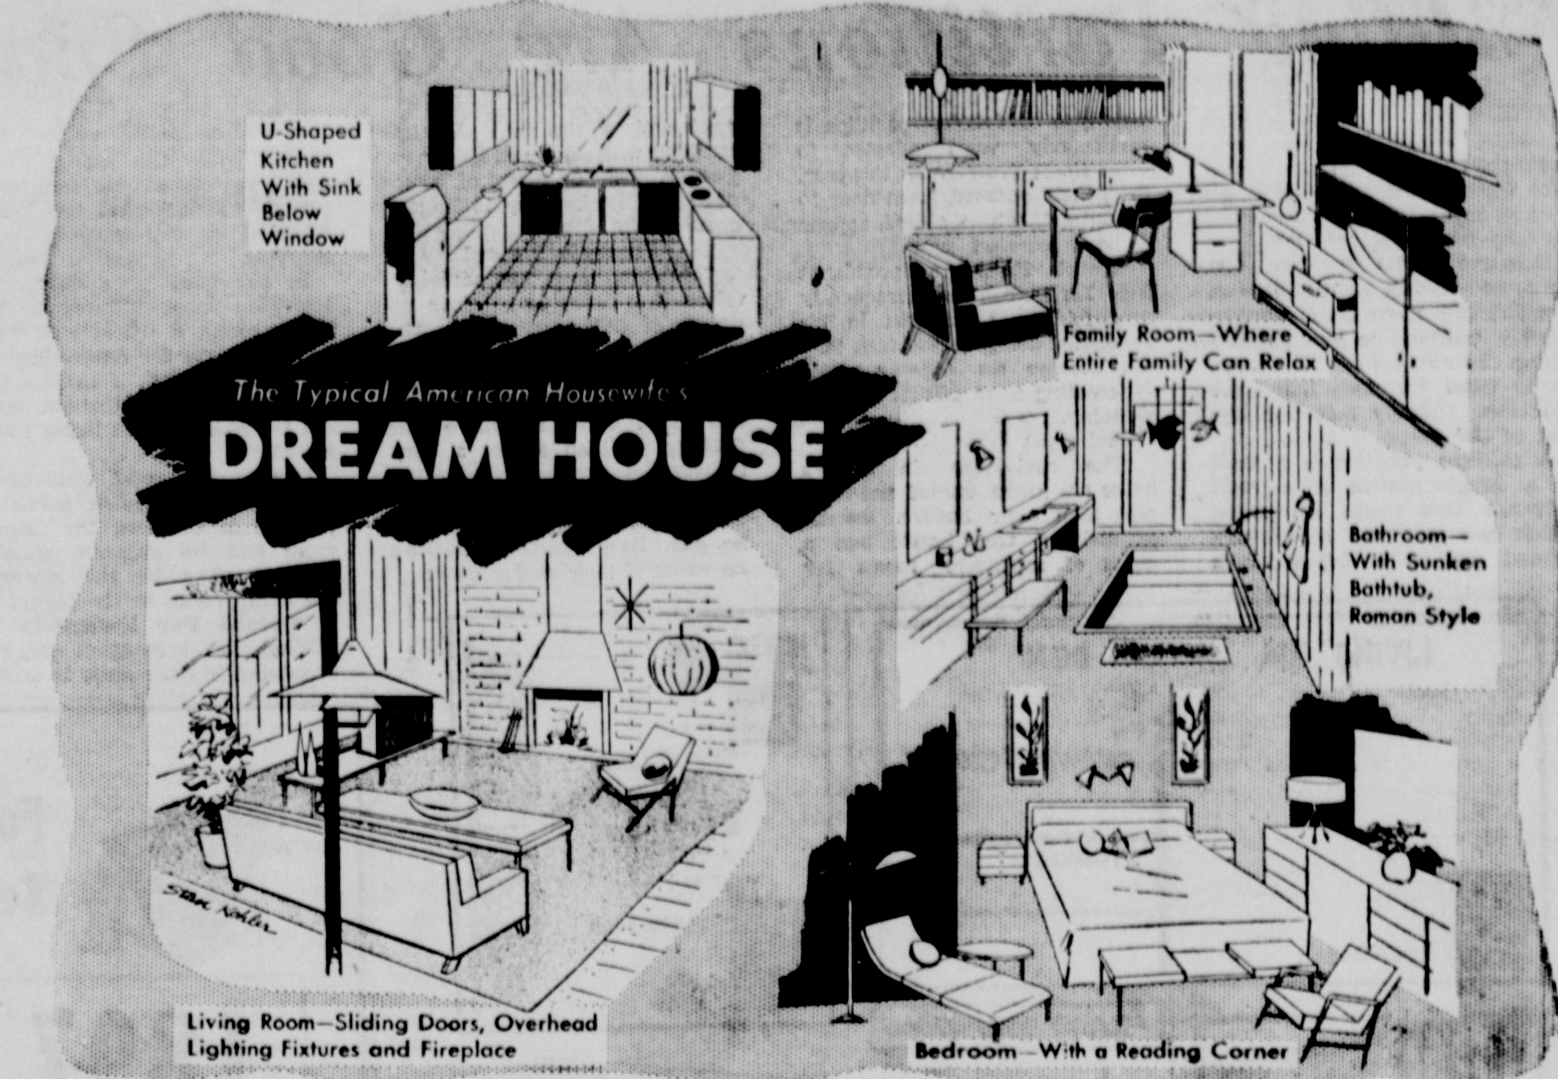

Almost all women found fault with present kitchen arrangements. Present kitchens, they said, are small and narrow, lack sufficient cabinets and cupboards, have poor types of floor coverings, have inadequate counters and drain boards and need better lighting and ventilation.

AN ADJOINING FAMILY ROOM — This should be right off the kitchen, where the entire family can relax. It should be located so as not to disturb sleeping children.

Given a choice, women prefer a family room over a dining room by a landslide percentage.

The family room should be separated from the kitchen by dividers. The family room should be separated from the kitchen by dividers. The family room should serve for recreation, entertaining and working.

THE FUNCTIONAL DINING

ROOM — The modern dining room should be more compact and functional. A center light fixture which can be adjusted in height is preferred. The buffet should serve as an appliance center within the dining room.

THE LIVING ROOM — It should be in the rear. Most wanted overhead lighting fixtures in the living room as well as practically everywhere else, except in bedrooms. Table and floor lamps are losing favor "because they clutter up the house."

A living room fireplace chimney should also serve the family room. More fireplaces are wanted in the home.

BEDROOMS — The master bedroom should have a reading corner, possibly a fireplace, separate lighted closets, and plenty of electrical outlets. Larger bedrooms are preferred.

Children's bedrooms should be far enough away from family and living rooms so that youngsters are not annoyed by evening activities and can, themselves, enjoy privacy.

BATHROOMS — They should be revolutionized. The colors and plumbing designs should be more attractive. Bathtubs of the future could be sunken, Roman style.

Bathroom windows should be replaced by sliding glass doors or a skylight. The toilet should be cantilevered into the wall to hide the tank. The wash basin should be wide and graceful in design, perhaps brass trimmed, and have movable fixtures which permit bathing the baby or washing the housewife's hair in comfort.

Women want a private, primp-up room, completely out of view of their husbands.

MISCELLANEOUS — Husbands rate more privacy and should have a room of their own. It should be a nice room, not just the basement or attic of the house.

Given a chance to improve their present homes, most women voted for a second bathroom. The next most desirable improvement was a family room—followed by more closets and storage space.

Presence of U.S. Army troops in overseas areas have enabled them to give assistance to the local populations in many ways.

For instance, in Italy a U.S. Army helicopter raised a heavy statue to the top of a church spire.

Folding Partitions Are Good Space Savers

FOLDING partitions are growing steadily in popularity because they are an important tool for the home designer, as well as an important space saver for the home owner.

Because of its flexibility and its space-saving characteristics, the folding partition is conveniently adapted to modern day living. It enables certain rooms to be used for more than one function, thereby reducing the cost of the house.

A folding partition is a wall or a large portion of a wall between two rooms or spaces which can be almost completely opened up by having sections

This type of folding partition is particularly well adapted to large closet fronts. In this case, the panels extend from floor to ceiling and, when closed, appear to be a paneled wall.

Samuel Paul, a prominent New York architect, frequently uses folding partitions in his residential designs and feels they can become an ingenious tool for creating new effects in home planning.

Paul says:

"The activities in today's house are more varied and complex than ever before. Instead of dividing the house into a series of separate rooms for each activity, the open plan has evolved whereby spaces flow together, giving an effect of largeness and erasing any feeling of confinement.

Privacy Is Created

"However, there are occasions when it is desirable to close up some of these spaces for the purposes of privacy. Yet to have the spaces permanently closed would create a tight and inflexible plan. Here is where the folding partition serves a very substantial purpose."

There are any number of uses to which folding partitions may be put. Paul lists the following as some of their major uses:

A dining room, which may merge with the living room, could be closed off for short periods when dishes are being removed or the table is being set.

In the case of a den or a television room adjacent to the living room, a whole wall may be opened up for entertainment purposes. Closed, it enables the family to look at television without interfering with living room activities.

One of the most convenient spots for the folding partition perhaps is between the family room and its adjacent spaces, whether they be the kitchen, the living room or the foyer.

Opened For Youngsters

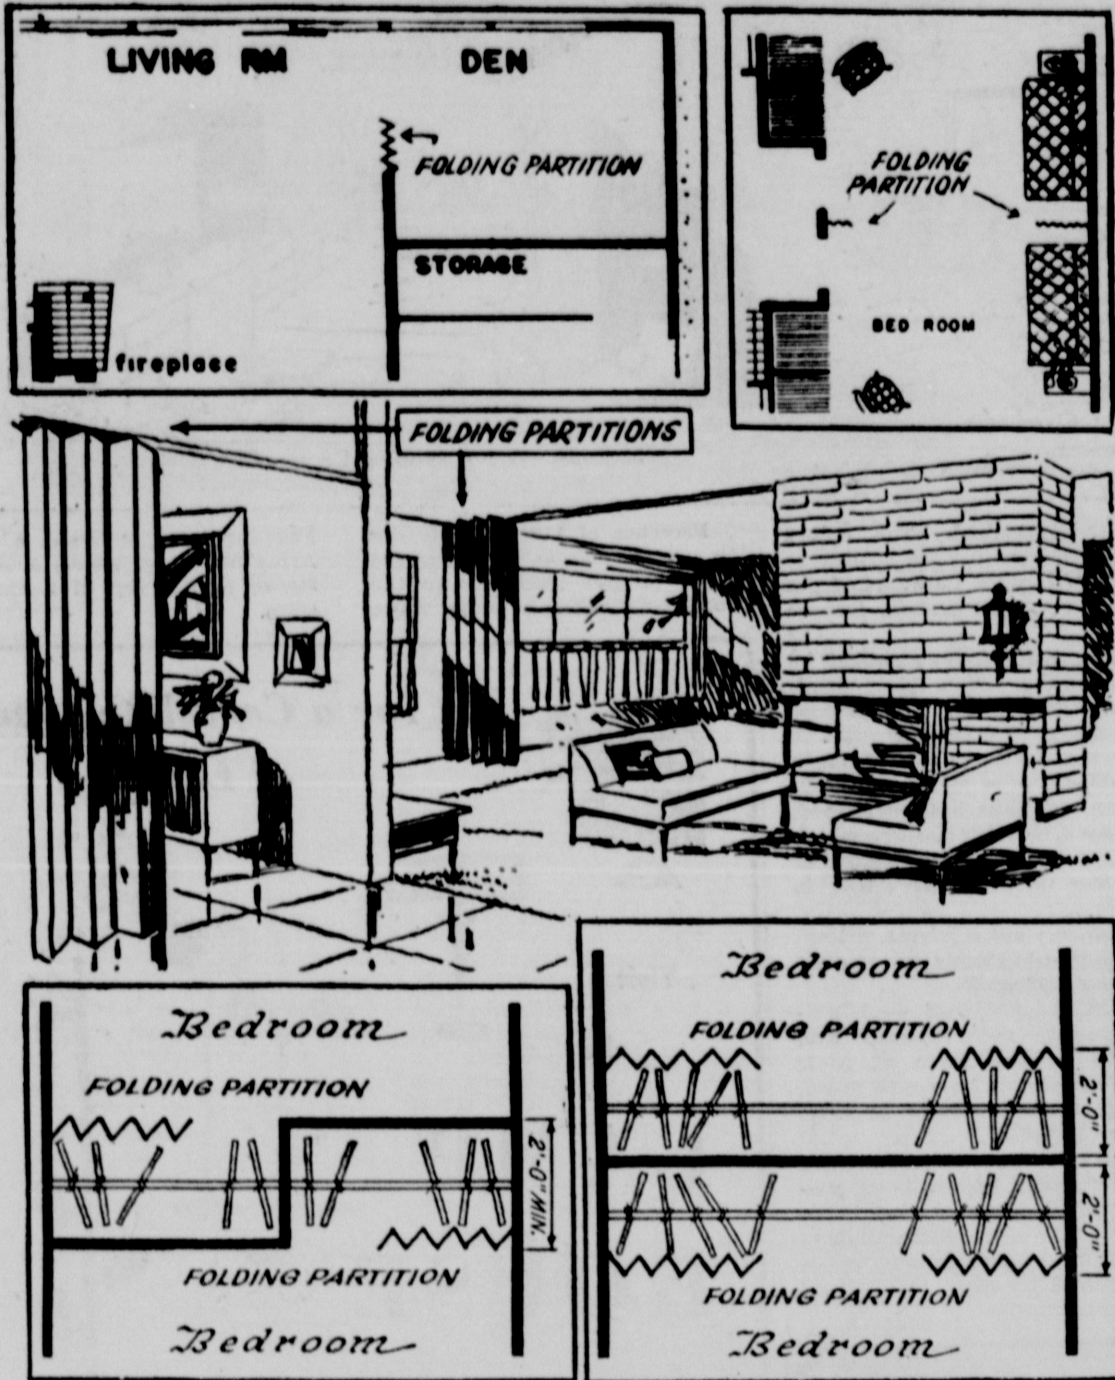

When the teen-agers are entertaining in this area, it is desirable to have it closed off. But when the younger children are playing here, it should be opened for full view so that supervision is made easy.

An ideal arrangement perhaps for the folding partition is its use as a closet front. In this way, it not only conserves space but it also gives complete access to the closet.

Used as a closet front, a folding partition can conveniently extend from floor to ceiling and from door jamb to door jamb, thereby saving a great deal of the usual framing.

"Although the folding partition is a step forward towards a more flexible design," Paul says, "it is anticipated that we will advance even further in that direction."

of it fold up against each other. The partition moves along a track, usually at the top, to one side or another, or both. A segment of a folding partition also can be used as a substitute for doors or closet fronts.

Many Varieties

There are more than 25 varieties of folding partitions on the market and they can be divided into three basic types.

A popular type and perhaps heading the list is the accordion partition. It is constructed of light steel frames, which are in the shape of an "X," fastened together and performing in scissors-like fashion. The frame is covered with a vinyl fabric which comes in an extensive range of colors and textures.

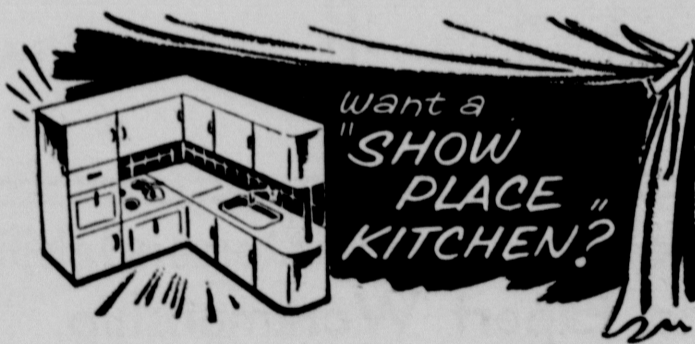

Another type is made up of wood slats, about six inches wide, which fold together so that only the ends of the slats are showing when the partition is completely open.

When this partition is closed, it looks like a flush wall of wood with vertical joints and closely resembles wood siding. Nearly any kind of wood could be specified for this type of folding partition in order to fit an interior decor.

New Type Available

Recently introduced is a fairly new type of folding partition, made of composition board or plywood in sections from 12 inches to 16 inches wide. These panels may be painted, covered with a fabric or left in their natural color.

An unusual effect can be obtained by painting the vertical panels in different colors or in different shades of a single color.

Modern Handyman Part of American Life

THE DO-it-yourself movement has grown out of the craze category and become an accepted aspect of American life. And that all-American, the handyman, spent an estimated 8 billion dollars last year on do-it-yourself projects. This figure includes paint, lumber, other materials and tools. Making it even more impressive, the Do-It-Yourself Information Bureau of New York City, an organization of the trade, estimates that 14 million homes have power work shops, and that 75 per cent of all American homeowners do work themselves. Do-it-yourself is of course just one part of the home improvement picture. America built about a million homes last year despite recession and gloomy forebodings. The cost of non-farm residential construction was estimated at 17 billion dollars. The median cost for a single family house was over $13,000. At the same time, the Home Improvement Council figured that the nation's remodeling bill ran to 15 billion dollars. The council is sure that there will be still more remodeling this year. For that matter, there have been optimistic estimates on 1958 home construction. And the died in the wool do-it-yourself fan always is optimistic, with or without expert help. His chief danger, in fact, is tackling jobs too big for him and not calling on professional help when it's needed.
